DECLARES LYNCH IS BRITISH AGENT

Sent to U. S. to Detract Sympathy From Irish Cause, Says Victory Fund Head

The charge that Colonel Arthur Lynch, former Irish representative in the British Parliament, who has arrived in Boston to deliver a lecture tomorrow night, is a paid emissary of the British government sent to America to disseminate propaganda antagonistic to the cause of Irish freedom was made today by John Morton, chairman of the advisory committee of seven to the Irish Victory Fund.

"The citizens of Boston who desire the independence of Ireland are not in sympathy with Colonel Lynch's visit," declared Mr. Morton.

"He is a paid emissary of the British government sent here to disseminate propaganda which is intended to detract sympathy from the Irish cause and create confusion among those who sympathise with Ireland's fight for freedom. That is the worst thing that could be said of an Irishman.

"Colonel Lynch does not represent the sentiment of Ireland. He is a

Buys Victory Cottage for Seaside Home for $1,450

After more than two years as the centre of war-time activities on Boston Common, Victory Cottage is to become a seaside bungalow, as a result of an auction held today.

The cottage, which served as headquarters for many drives, including Liberty Loan, Red Cross and Soldier Service campaigns, was disposed of to Hans A. Olsen of No. 347 Park avenue, Revere, for $1,450.

After the Roosevelt drive is over Mr. Olson will take the house to a lot of land near Revere Beach, where he will convert it into a two-family Summer bungalow. The building is twenty-two feet wide, fifty-four feet long and is made in six-foot sections. The sale of the building included the stage built outside and a heating arrangement, valued at $640.

SEEK CLEWS TO SLAYER OF WOMAN

State and County Authorities at Lowell to Probe Killing of Mrs. Fortuna

Lowell, Oct. 20.—District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts, accompanied by State Detective Silas P. Smith and Captain Herbert Gordon of the district attorney's office, came here today to conduct an investigation into the mysterious murder of Mrs. Mary Fortuna.

The county prosecutor and his assistants conferred with Superintendent Welsh of this city, Chief Cullinane of Dracut and Medical Examiner Smith, who with Drs. Collins and Ryan completed an autopsy.

Ledge Hill, the scene of the finding of the body, was visited by hundreds of the curious today. The investigators spent considerable time in that vicinity seeking for clews.

For the time being Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith will not make public the results of his autopsy. It is known, however, that the woman's skull was fractured. The medical evidence is expected to play an important part in the case.

The woman was divorced about two years ago. Since then Fortuna has spent most of his time in Pawtucket, R. I.

Mrs. Fortuna left her sister's home on September 5 to go to her work.

PICK JURY IN POISON TANGLE

Four Chosen in Wolgemuth Case; Woman May Take Stand as Accuser

Charged with murdering his wife in order that he might be free to devote himself to another woman, Frank B. Wolgemuth, a navy yard employe, went on trial in Superior Court today.

It was said that this woman, for love of whom Wolgemuth is alleged to have administered cyanide of potassium to his wife, would appear as a witness for the prosecution.

According to the government, Mrs. Wolgemuth returned to the flat which she occupied with her husband at No. 159 Shawmut avenue, on Sunday, March 30. At this time she complained of feeling ill, the prosecution charges. They further charge that Wolgemuth volunteered to prepare some epsom salts for his wife, and gave her cyanide of potassium instead.

The government stated it was prepared to prove that Wolgemuth had access to the poison while at work. Mrs. Wolgemuth died almost instantly after taking the preparation.

The trial began before Judge Fessenden and four jurors were soon selected out of thirty-five talesmen.

The jurors selected are: Thomas O'Brien, a contractor, of No. 194 Blake street, Mattapan; John Babcock, a janitor, of No. 373 Hanover street; Charles W. Freeman, a druggist, of No. 57 County road, Chelsea, and Michael J. Barry, a carpenter, of No. 58 Putnam street, East Boston.

Among the talesmen examined was Henry D. Turney, agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. He answered the usual questions put by the court. Attorney Daniel J. Daley, counsel for Wolgemuth, asked if Mrs. Wolgemuth was insured in his company, and the talesman said she was not. Turney was challenged by District Attorney Pelletier.

Attorney Daley and E. M. Dangel appear for Wolgemuth, and District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier and Assistant District Attorney Daniel Gallagher for the government.

WON'T DISCUSS COMPROMISE, SAYS LEWIS

Coal Miners' Leaders Firm in Position; Strike Sure November 1

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 20.—"We will discuss no compromise."

John H. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers, made this statement today relative to the conference of miners and operators to be held with Secretary of Labor Wilson tomorrow in an attempt to forestall the threatened coal strike.

"Get that clear. We'll discuss no compromise," said Lewis. "We opened negotiations with the operators in Buffalo. They broke them off. We tried to negotiate with them again in Philadelphia. They again broke off the negotiations.

"We went into the conference with Secretary Wilson ready to discuss any compromise they might offer. They made no move and since then have shown that they don't want the strike called off."

"The strike won't be called off," Lewis continued. "Bituminous miners in every State in the Union from West Virginia to Colorado will go on strike November 1. There will be enough coal on hand to keep the country warm about thirty days."

Lewis said that with the arrival of Percy Tetlo, statistician of the mine workers, figures would be presented "to give the miners a clear case before the public."

"The production of bituminous coal rose to a new high record during the week ended October 11," the weekly report of the United States geological survey stated today. "The week's production is estimated at 11,924,000 tons, an increase of 3.4 per cent. over the preceding week and greater by 311,000 tons than that of the first week in October, which had hitherto been the highest this year.

PUSH WAR ON WEIGHT ROBBERS

Public Must Be Protected, Says Hanson; Asks Mayor to Give More Men

To protect the Boston buying public against fraud in short weights and measures, State Commissioner Hanson of the department of standards today urged Mayor Peters to employ more inspectors and to equip the Boston department of weights and measures with new testing devices in the place of those which a recent investigation disclosed to be "antiquated, broken-down" and "of doubtful accuracy."

Commissioner Hanson also urged Mayor Peters to divide the city into districts, "sufficiently compact so that one inspector can cover any district properly within twelve months."

These precautions are necessary, he insisted, to protect the public against wholesale fraud.

Sweeping violations of the law were revealed in the recent investigation in which more than 600 grocers, butchers and pedlers were found guilty of minor offenses and in which sixty-seven other retail dealers were summonsed into the courts on the charge of "grosser and more flagrant" offenses.

"Out of a total of 1,359 shops visited by State inspectors, in which there were 7,687 weighing and measuring devices," said Mr. Hanson in a letter to Mayor Peters, "it was found that 18 per cent. of them were inacurate. Only 41 per cent. had been sealed as O. K. in the present year. Reweighing and remeasuring of commodities put up for immediate delivery to the consumer indicated that 30 per cent. were under proper weight or measure. The results of the investigation shows that gross violation of the weights and measures law prevails."

The Boston Sealer of Weights and Measures Department consists of the sealer, ten deputies, a chief clerk and a mechanician. Mr. Hanson says only five of these are available for the testing and sealing of ordinary commercial weights and measures

LAND WITH MACHINE GUNS

Ordered to Load Army Transports and Keep Order on New York Docks

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 20.—Armed with machine guns and rifles and equipped with trench helmets, 500 United States troops, most of them veterans from overseas, were landed from the transport George Washington at Hoboken today for duty in the longshoremen's strike.

The soldiers were hurried to the South Brooklyn water front, where the army base piers are tied up by the strike.

Brigadier-General P. W. Davison, transport movement officer, declared if this force proved insufficient more troops would be brought up. Other soldiers from Northern army camps are already at Hoboken, and Brigadier-General Davison was emphatic in saying that the army transport service will be kept moving "strike or no strike."

It is possible that the soldiers may be employed to help the movement of one hundred ships of the Federal Shipping Board, whose departure for foreign ports was prevented by the strike.

While the troops were being dis-

This flat ultimatum was delivered to the strikers today in letters mailed by the United States Steel Corporation. Similar letters are said to have been mailed to striking steel workers in all sections of the country.

Colonel W. S. Mapes, in command of the Federal troops at Gary, Ind., announced today that "everything in Gary is quiet," declaring that "disturbers who have not been seized in Federal raids have left the city in numbers."

Colonel Mapes at the same time announced that he would fight efforts to secure the release of several of these disturbers, now held pending further investigation of alleged plots to overthrow the government.

The alleged assault with a knife resulted in nine wounds. Johnson has been in hospital since October 18.

COOLIDGE REDUCES TROOPS

Gompers Admits Three Members of Union Visited Him

Between 1,500 and 2,000 State Guardsmen who have been performing police duty in Boston since the policemen went on strike have been relieved of further police duty and will be sent to their homes not later than tomorrow.

Governor Coolidge today approved plans for reducing the force of guardsmen in the city to about 3,000. About 5,000 are now on duty.

Governor Coolidge announced the plan to reduce the guard force following a conference with Adjutant-General Stevens and Brigadier-General Parker, commanding the guardsmen. The power to decide which regiments shall be relieved rests with the two general officers.

At Washington today President Gompers admitted that three members of the Boston Policemen's Union had been to see him in New York. He refused, however, to comment on the nature of their business. He declared it to be purely private and of no interest to the public. The police representatives who saw Gompers are Michael Murphy, James Flason and Peter W. Murphy.

NEW PLAN IS EXPECTED TO BREAK DEADLOCK IN THE CONFERENCE

REPORT THAT GARY MAY TAKE MORE MODERATE POSITION

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 20.—President Wilson's industrial conference, when it met today, after a recess since Friday, found the sole issue before the conference was whether or not American employers had the duty of meeting representatives of their workmen who come from outside their factory.

The committee of fifteen found it necessary to ask for more time when the hour for the opening of the conference came, and an adjournment until 2:30 o'clock was taken. The committee, it was explained, had prepared a resolution on which the labor and employer members of the committee could not give their votes until they had conferred with their respective groups in the conference.

It was announced that the employers were preparing to submit a proposition to the conference which they hoped would end the deadlock between the labor and the employers over labor representation. It was rumored that Judge Gary had received permission from the directors of the United States Steel Company to moderate his heretofore inflexible position against conferring with labor representatives.

STATEMENT BY TAFT.

It was said before the opening of the session that Judge Gary, in a statement which he had prepared for the conference, would claim that the steel strike had worn itself out and that the Gompers resolution for a settlement of the strike was no longer apropos.

The publication in Washington today of a strong statement by ex-President Taft, in which he points out that employers ought to meet representatives of their men, whether these representatives are or are not employes in the same plant, indicates that Taft has taken the side of Gompers and union labor in the conference dispute.

Taft also points out that the employers at the conference ought to try to keep the present conservative leaders of labor in their saddles and avoid having more radical leaders gain control of unionism.

Judge Gary, after having spent three days in New York conferring with financial leaders, was due to resume his seat in the public group according to his colleagues in the group. During the wait for the opening of the conference he broke his rule about not meeting labor men. He met Frank Morrison of the A. F. of L. on the marble steps leading to the conference room, and greeted him cordially. Other delegates noted with interest that the two men engaged in a lengthy conversation, during which Gary often smiled.

LABOR AT CENTRE TABLE.

Franklin K. Lane, chairman of the Industrial Conference, joined them.

The Gary-Morrison conversation lasted half an hour. At its conclusion the two men entered the conference hall together.

"We just talked about the general situation," said Morrison afterward. "We didn't settle anything."

The public group, which formerly sat in the centre of the room between the employers and labor group, took the labor table today. The labor group took the centre table, with the employers next to them on their right.

This change was made at the suggestion of the employers group, Harry Wheeler saying: "Why cannot the labor group sit next to us, so that there will be nothing between us?"

CRAP GAME RAID COSTS FINES TO 33 YOUTHS

Entire North Providence Police Force Swoops Down on "Red Lion"

Providence, Oct. 20.—The thirty-three Providence and Pawtucket youths arrested in a North Providence crap game raid at the "Red Lion" appeared in the Sixth District Court today, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5 each, with costs.

The raid was the biggest and most sensational of its nature in the history of this district. It took place at 2:30 in the morning and required the entire North Providence police force of ten men.

The police, loaded down with handcuffs and ropes, swooped down on the gang in the midst of a big stake. They surrendered without a battle. The entire gang was roped together and marched to the Marieville fire station. At this place each man deposited $20 with the leader of the raiding squad as surety for appearance in court today. The local police station has but three cells.

According to Chief of Police George H. Willis, the "Red Lion" is run by a Providence man, for whom search is now being made.

LYNCH BRANDED AS AGENT OF BRITISH

Boston Head of Irish Victory Fund Says He Is Sent Here to Spread Propaganda

member of a small Nationalist group who support the British rule in spite of the repeated deception of the Nationalist party by the British government.

TO COMBAT STATEMENTS.

"If he anticipates any opposition at his lecture from the Irish of Boston he will be disappointed. Several of our men have expressed a desire to attend his meeting and combat the statements about Ireland he will doubtless make.

"But a 'fight' would please Colonel Lynch too much in that it would reflect on the true defenders of Irish freedom. I pay my respects to his physical courage for he does possess that, but he is a moral coward.

"There is a certain element in Boston, and even a few Irishmen, who may be dupes of Colonel Lynch's propaganda. They are either blind to the true situation in Ireland or 'climbers,' who would snatch up the crumbs from the Tory table.

"But with a big majority of Ireland's friends in this city, his influence is nil."

BRANDED AS "TRAITOR."

John Devoy of New York, editor of the Gaelic American, branded Colonel Lynch as "a traitor to the cause of Irish independence" in a statement given out in that city. He declared that his speaking tour through the United States was designed to "take the heart out of the advocates of a real Irish republic."

Colonel Lynch when shown this statement today said:

"I am not here to bandy words with Devoy. I have done more for the Irish cause then he has, and I have always been a consistent advocate of a republic for Ireland.

"Nothing is more false than the statement that I am here to take the heart out of the Irish cause.

"I wish to see the Irish cause made as strong in America as it is possible to make it. When I was last in America after returning from the Boer war I was an advanced Nationalist in advocating a republic for Ireland. I have never wavered or chanied.

"The enemies of Ireland, however, are always on the lookout for signs of a wrangle, and, unfortunately, their hopes are only too often fulfilled. I will not reply by any counter-attacks, and hardly think it worth while to say anything in my own defence.

PUT MONEY IN CAUSE.

"During my whole career in Irish politics, which has cost me sacrifices and even the possibility of death on more than one occasion, I have not been one of those who lived on Irish affairs or profited by them. On the contrary, money which I have made in other pursuits has been in part sunk in the cause.

"I have never sought or gained any personal advantage, political or otherwise, by my advocacy of Irish independence, and I accept, as I havve always advocated, the main doctrine of the Sinn Fein—the right of Ireland to self-determination. When the form of this has been decided, I think there can only be one final solution of the Irish question, and that is in the republican form of government.

"Where I differ from Sinn Feinism however, is in regard to ways and means. A movement in Ireland must either move on constitutional lines or by physical force. The weak point in all physical movements now is that there is no physical force in Ireland.

AGAINST ENGLISH RULE.

"I will not insist on that point because it leaps to the eyes of men of common sense. This brings me to a definite point in view of tactics that is that those of the Sinn Fein are wrong.

"Their policy of abstension from Westminster deprives the Sinn Fein of what could be made one of its most effective weapons as well as a most powerful means of propaganda. But that again is a question of tactics.

"Then again with regard to the spirit wit hwhich the whole movement is conducted, I know it is easy and popular to rant against the iniquities of England. I do not think a nation can be built on mere sentiments or rancor and hate.

"I am so opposed to English government in Ireland that I wish to see the whole system abolished, but I also know, being a member of the labor party of Great Britain, that there is a vast body of opinion in England, itself, in that party favorable to Ireland's ispirations even if these should take the form of a republican government. It seems to me a matter of common snse as well as good statesmanship to foster and encourage the good will of the labor party.

"The annual exports from Ireland to England amount to a billion dollars. If the policy advocated by some of the Sinn Feiners could be realized it would be tantamount to taking this billion dollars' worth of products into the Irish Sea, and sinking the ships.

TO TOUR COUNTRY.

"So far as the accusation that I wish to spike the guns of the Irish cause, I am determined to do my best to win the battle for Irish freedom. It was I who taught the young generation of Irishmen to be Republicans. I am at the present time president of the Republican League of Great Britain.

"I go further than the Sinn Feiners in that I wish to see the republican form of government instituted in all dominions as in England itself as well as in Ireland. I am convinced that it is only along those lines that the Irish cause will be brought to its hoped-for consummation in establishing an Irish nation after a century of dispute and struggle."

Colonel Lynch comes to Boston under the direction of the Pond lecture bureau and will tour other parts of the United States and Canada. He will advocate his plan for a republic of Canada while in that dominion, he says. Besides his career in politics, he has written several books on psychology, of which he is a student. He also is a poet, and a number of his works of fiction have been published.

He will not confine his lectures to the Irish question or politics, he hays, but will include the subjects to which he has devoted much of his writing.

tributed the conciliation commission appointed by Secretary of Labor Wilson was meeting with representatives of the Federal Shipping Board, the National Adjustment Commission, and the shipping companies in an effort to settle the troubles.

Mayor Hylan, a member of the conciliation commission, had asked Secretary of War Baker to prevent the landing of the troops, but the request was not granted.

The soldiers are under the immediate command of Colonel Jesse W. Cullison, who saw active service in France and fought in six big engagements. He wears two wound stripes and a Croix de Guerre with two palms and three stars. Many of the privates also wore decorations for gallantry in action.

Deputy Sheriff Lawson was next called to the stand. He confirmed the story told by Wood as to Long's treatment at the hotel. Upon cross-examination by Attorney Carver, however, he admitted that he had called Long a liar. He hadn't called him a murderer, but had sworn at him many times.

STATEMENT IS ADMITTED.

Judge Butler here asked if there was any further objection to the reading of the report of Long's answers to questions asked him while he was at the hotel with the officers. Attorney Carver said that sufficient evidence had been shown to render it improper that this report should be read to the jury. It was ruled, however, that the report was permissible evidence.

The jury filed in and the notes were read. State's Attorney Davis and Attorney-General Archibald alternating in reading them.

Long's intimacy with Mrs. Broadwell was revealed as his answers to the questions were read. A sordid story of the various "parties" held at Mrs. Parker's was unfolded. Long had been intimate with Mrs. Broadwell at the Parker house; also with Gertie Upton, or Hunt, as she is variously known.

On one occasion, it was related, Mrs. Broadwell and Mrs. Parker were at the Parker house when he and a friend whom he called "Big Charlie," paid a call. Mrs. Broadwell and Charlies got "pretty thick," and remained there that night.

BOTH AT MRS. PARKER'S.

The defendant's story of his actions on the night of the murder included an admission that he was with Mrs. Broadwell on that night. He had urged her to remain, but she said she must be with her children. Mrs. Parker insisted that she have some lunch, so she remained while Long went out and purchased some food. After eating, Mrs. Broadwell left, reminding him they were to meet Monday night at another place.

Long told the officers he went to bed shortly afterward. He heard of the murder on the following morning. Mrs. Parker told him not to mention that Mrs. Broadwell had been at her home on the night of the murder.

Long appeared to be nervous during the testimony of Detective Wood and Deputy Sheriff Lawson, and the reading of the examination to which he was subjected at the hotel.

Government's Transports Must Be Kept Moving, Baker Tells Mayor Hylan

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Troops will be used for army activities on the docks in New York to replace the striking longshoremen, Secretary of War Baker today informed Mayor Hylan of New York. The statement was made in a reply to a request from Mayor Hylan that no troops be used until further efforts had been made to settle the longshoremen's strike.

The Secretary's message follows:

"The troops referred to in your telegram of the 19th instant are being transferred to the port of New York for duty in connection with the port activities, particularly the Army Supply Base at South Brooklyn.

"The vessels which the War Department are operating are public vessels, and their operation is essential to provide needed supplies for our forces abroad and for the return of emergency men still to be brought back from France.

"The port authorities have been directed to maintain this service and to take whatever steps may be required to continue the necessary operations at the port.

"I will co-operate with you in any possible way to bring about an adjustment of the strike difficulty. The War Departments' policy has always been and will be to deal fairly with labor, but the maintenance of the transport service upon which our overseas army depends, and which is bringing home soldiers returning from France, is a part of the war operation of the government, and I intend to continue their operations."

Submarine Trying to Join d'Annunzio Engaged in 'Battle'

By International News Service.

Geneva, Oct. 20.—A report of a "battle" between an Italian submarine, which attempted to join Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio's forces at Fiume, and an Italian destroyer which prevented the submersible from doing so, was received here today from Venice.

The submarine F-16 eluded the Admiralty forces. The commander is said to have showed the captain of the port forged orders to proceed to Brindisi. The submarine departed, but changed her course and started for Fiume.

A short time later the subterfuge was detected and a destroyer was sent in pursuit. The submarine was encountered twenty miles out in the Adriatic and ordered to halt. Instead, the F-16 set off at full speed ahead with the evident determination to ram the destroyer.

The destroyer eluded the under-water craft and turned her guns on the F-16, threatening to sink her. The submarine then gave up and returned to Venice, where the officers and crew were placed under arrest.

PROHIBITION HAS NOT HELPED SODA TRADE

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Americans are not rushing to the ice cream soda fountains under the bone-dry regime. This was the gist of an address made by Asa B. Gardiner, president of the National Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, at the convention of the association here.

"No, sir; it was all wrong—all wrong," said Mr. Gardiner. "I know we were told that the alcohol starved system would turn to sweets, but the expected rush failed to materialize. If anything business began to fall off."

Another paradox of the ice cream trade, Mr. Gardiner explained, was that more of the dainty was consumed in cold climates than in warm.

FIND MISSING WOMAN'S BODY IN WOODS

Mrs. Fortuna's Nude Corpse Discovered After Disappearance of Six Weeks

That was the last seen of her until James Adams, hunting in the woods near Ledge Hill, Dracut, found her body.

He was attracted to it by his dog, which wandered off and set up an insistent barking. The body was nude save for one shoe and stocking, resembling somewhat the condition in which the body of Mrs. Lucina Broadwell was found in Barre, Vt., in May. Decomposition had already set in.

Adams notified the authorities, and it was definitely established that the body was that of Mrs. Fortuna. Her sister, Mrs. John Gondek, completed the identification.

Mrs. Fortuna was middle-aged and enjoyed an excellent reputation among her co-workers and those who knew her in Lowell and Dracut. The search for her murderer is being vigorously prosecuted, and it is expected that an early arrest will result.

WEALTHY SOCIETY WOMEN MEMBERS OF FAKIR'S "HINDU" CULT

STRANGE ANTICS ON LAWN

Deposed 'Oom the Omnipotent' in Charge of New Colony at Nyack, N. Y.

New York, Oct. 20.—"Oom the Omnipotent," "Loving Guru of the Tantriks," self-styled High Priest of the mystical Hindu cult which was exposed as a cloak for daring orgies when his temples in New York City were raided by the police several years ago, is back at his old job.

The "Omnipotent One," listed on the police blotters as Dr. Pierre A. Bernard, dropped out of sight a year ago, following an exposure by the New York American. Today he is holding forth as head of the same old Yoga cult in a colony he has established at Nyack, N. Y.

Thrice driven from New York city, he is now ensconsed in one of the most beautiful spots along the Hudson River, and numbers among his followers some of the best known society women in New York.

Mrs. Cyril Hatch, formerly Miss Barbara Rutherfurd, daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr.

Her sister, Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, formerly Miss Margaret Rutherfurd.

Mrs. Chalmers Wood, Jr., formerly Miss Katherine Turnbull, of Bernardsville, N. J.

Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, of New York and Tuxedo.

These and many others of equal social prominence are among the converts to the cult.

DO THEY KNOW HIS PAST?

Whether the society women and the others who have become followers of the "Omnipotent Oom" are aware that he is the Dr. Pierre A. Bernard who was indicted on a charge of abduction and criminal assault growing out of the orgies attending initiations of members in his New York temple eight years ago, is not known. They could not be reached.

But it was reported that Mrs. Vanderbilt, Sr., is hastening back from Normandy, where she spent the Summer, for the one purpose of getting her two daughters to abandon the cult.

Since joining the colony Mrs. Hatch has taken a cottage near the Yoga temple, and Mrs. Mills, who also became a convert since her return from France a month ago, has been living with her sister in Nyack.

It was in the latter part of last June that the "The Great and Omnipotent Oom" made his appearance in Nyack. He and his followers selected one of the most picturesque spots on the bank of the Hudson for the establishment of the Yoga colony, taking the buildings and spacious grounds occupied for years by the Nyack Country Club.

HAD BEEN A GIRLS' SCHOOL.

When the club moved to its present quarters in South Nyack, four years ago, the place was leased to Sister Beatrix, a former Episcopalian nun, who conducted a boarding school until the term closed at the end of last Spring.

Sister Beatrix, who embraced the Yoga cult, transferred the property to "Oom" and his followers and soon disappeared. Before she dropped out of sight, however, the colony had been established. It is now known as the Braeburn Country Club.

Not long after the advent of "Oom" and his followers Nyack began to buzz with rumors of the strange things going on at the club. Persons who passed the place saw men, women and children going through grotesque exercises, but such secrecy was maintained that even the most curious were unable to learn what it was all about.

Men and women were garbed alike, wearing bloomers and sandals and going hatless when performing the physical exercises held in the open. But none observed anything bordering on the wild orgies that had been revealed in the police raids on the temples "Ooms" conducted in New York. Whatever took place within the temple and the cottages on the grounds, however, could not be viewed by the Nyack villagers.

ONLY ONE KNEW OF BERNARD.

Only one woman in Nyack—a wealthy widow whose daughter was a pupil at the Riverhook School conducted by Sister Beatrix and who lives not far from the club—was aware that Dr. Pierre A. Bernard was connected with it.

And she did not know that he was "Oom the Omnipotent," who had escaped a long prison term in New York only by spiriting away the girls he lured to his temples and subjected to various cruelties.

In the latter part of the Summer Mrs. Hatch appeared, and it was noised about that one of the Vanderbilt daughters had become a member of the new colony.

Other prominent society women, including Mrs. Mills, were recognized, but still the villagers were unable to learn what it was all about.

KEPT HIS PAST HIDDEN.

Dr. Bernard took good care to guard from everyone in Nyack the fact that he was the same "Oom" who was thrice in the toils of the New York police. He and his worshippers saw to it that no natives were invited to join, and the Nyack residents took it for granted that the Braeburn Country Club was an organization, the membership of which was confined to New Yorkers and prominent society folk of Tuxedo and other resorts.

Pierre himself, who received a visitor from the temporal world, behaved like an Occidental.

Pierre Bernard said:

"If there is a Yoga cult here I never heard of it. The nearest religious element to the club is the little church across the way. We are purely a recreational club, a sort of Summer colony."

BLOOMERS, AND NO SHOES.

Two women came from a big room across the front of the house, where a group of men and women were playing the piano, singing and making merry. One of the two wore a white blouse, white bloomers and white stockings—no shoes or hat. The other wore a crimson opera cloak over the same kind of costume. Both crossed the lawn to the tennis courts.

A neighbor directly across the street was asked if women commonly appeared in that costume. She answered:

"Yes. They dress like that always, the men and the women just alike. They play on the courts and take their exercise, but we don't know anything about them. They keep themselves so entirely excluded from the village."

Chalmers Wood, Jr., who was reported as having been opposed to his wife taking the "rest cure" at the club, denied vehemently that he had the slightest objection to it. On the contrary, he said, he was greatly in favor of the "course," knowing that the exercises were greatly beneficial to one's health and aided in the upbuilding of the body. As for the exercises having any bearing on the Yoga ritual, he maintained that they were just simple exercises that could do no harm.

Boston may see and hear the "flying parson," Lieutenant Belvin W. Maynard, next Friday. Maynard, who has just completed his record coast-to-coast flight, is expected in Boston on that day, October 24, to speak at the big Red Cross meeting in Symphony Hall, at which the third annual Red Cross roll-call will have its preliminary launching.

Maynard may fly to Boston from Mineola, in which event Bostonians will have the opportunity of seeing the flying parson" in flight.

Arrangements to secure Maynard as a speaker at the big Red Cross meeting were started today, when Miss Dorothy Forbes, one of the leaders of the roll-call campaign, telephoned to Washington to enlist the aid of Assistant Secretary of State Phillips in getting the "flying parson" assigned to speak at the meeting.

Mr. Phillips promised to do everything in his power to secure Maynard for the meeting.

PUBLIC WARDS BILL BEFORE COUNCIL

Mayor Peters Presents Ordinance Consolidating Three City Departments

With the objectionable features removed, Mayor Peters offered to the City Council at the meeting today an ordinance consolidating the Boston Infirmary, children's institutions and institutions registration departments, into the department of public wards.

The penal institutions department is omitted in the new ordinance, as this was the feature that caused the Council to kill an earlier consolidation ordinance, and in a communication accompanying the bill the Mayor points out that the poor on Long Island and the boys on Rainsford Island are in no way intermingled or associated with the prisoners on Deer Island by the terms of the new measure.

The salary of the commissioner who is to head this department is fixed at $6,000. It was previously fixed at $7,500.

The Mayor says in his communication:

"The principle of this ordinance is separate and distinct from that of the ordinance submitted to your honorable body under date of July 16, 1919, and is based on the fundamental reason that all departments which have to do with the care of public wards should be consolidated in one department under a single executive head for the sake of economy and efficiency of administration.

The poor on Long Island and the boys on Rainsford Island are in no way intermingled or associated with the prisoners on Deer Island, which was the main objection to the former ordinance."

Mrs. Stokes has already started an action for separation, asking for alimony and counsel fees, and another action asking for the revocation of a deed she signed disposing of her dower rights.

Mrs. Stokes claims that her husband transferred to his son property valued at $10,000,000, which belongs to her under dower rights.

LONG ANGERED BY DETECTIVE'S TESTIMONY

Defence Will Fight to Keep Out Statements Made Before His Arrest

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 20.—James H. Wood, who investigated the murder of Mrs. Louisa A. Broadwell at Barre last Spring, was called to the witness stand today and grilled by Attorney Carver, counsel for George A. Long, who is accused of the woman's murder.

The prosecution prepared to introduce stenographic reports of an examination of Long, conducted on May 11. Objection was made by the defence on the grounds that the statements made by Long were the result of threats.

The jury retired while the point was threshed out.

During the testimony given by Detective Wood and Deputy Sheriff Lawson Long appeared angry and from time to time he whispered excitedly to Attorney Hoar, of his counsel.

When Deputy Sheriff Lawson testified that no promises had been made to Long that he would be let off with a charge of manslaughter if he confessed the crime, the defendant whispered loudly, "He was the man that said it."

SAID LONG WAS LYING.

Detective Wood testified that he questioned Long concerning the murder. "Long, I want to talk to you," he said. "You have been lying to me and the officers. I am convinced that you are the man who killed Mrs. Broadwell. I shall recommend that you be placed under arrest. Don't tell me any more lies, as they will be used against you."

The detective told of going to Lebanon, where he met Grace Grimes. She had received a letter from Mrs. Broadwell, which had been mailed in Barre the Thursday night preceding the murder. Mrs. Broadwell had stated in her letter that she had just received a note from Mrs. Parker, asking her to come to the Parker house once more if she wanted ever to do another favor for her. The letter from Mrs. Broadwell described a man who was a fairly good dresser and owned a Buick car. She went down to see him, but he was not there. So for spite she sewed up the sleeves of his coat. She was going down to the Parker house once more, and then she was going to ditch the whole crowd of them, the letter said.

BOTH AT MRS. PARKER'S.

Mrs. Parker, continued Wood, had admitted to him that Long had been at her home on Saturday night with Mrs. Broadwell. He had met her at the Parker house the previous Saturday night.

That Long was in the company of detectives and police officials for a week at the Barre Hotel was admitted by Wood when cross-examined by Attorney Carver. On Sunday, May 11, declared Wood, Long arrived at the Barre Hotel with Deputy Sheriff Morris. Long remained there until the following Thursday, when he was arrested.

Wood said Long was not kept in close confinement at the hotel, but he did not go out. He was questioned by the officers. His meals were served in his room, and Wood said he paid the bills.

Seek Astor Millions for Back Taxes Due New York

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 20.—The State of New York is expected to collect a huge sum in taxes from the estate of the late William Waldorf Astor, expatriated American, who is dead in London.

Eugene M. Travis, State comptroller, announced today that every effort would be made by the State to collect a tax amounting to several millions, although Astor transferred a great deal of his property to his relatives before his death.

Viscount Astor held realty holdings in New York of from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 as late as 1918, but according to Charles Peabody, attorney for the Astor interests in this country, did not own a single foot at the time of his death. Pittsfield, Oct. 20.—In answer to the $15,000 alienation suit brought against him by Morris Levenson of New York, Raymond Terry of Inglewood, N. H., a Summer resident of Great Barrington, charges Levenson and Helen Levenson, "alias Miss Thomas," with conspiracy to defraud him, extort money from him and ruin him socially.

The answer was filed in the Superior Court here today, and gives indications that the suit, which began Wednesday will be sensational.

Terry, who is a banker, and a prominent bachelor in New York society, sets forth that he does not know of any marriage relation existing between plaintiff and Helen Levenson.

He says that through "deceit, prevarication and misrepresentation, Helen Levenson (alias Miss Thomas) gained his acquaintance and his affection, and induced him to promise to marry her."

He states that he gave numerous gifts and tokens of great and unusual value to her, and that she and the plaintiff conspired to extort money from him and bring social disgrace upon him.

GIBSON'S BRIDE BARRED BY PARENTS

"Can Never Set Foot in My House Again," Says Mother, in Anger.

New York, Oct. 20.—As a result of the marriage of Mrs. Beatrice M. Benjamin Pratt to Preston Gibson on Friday, Mrs. William E. Benjamin, the bride's mother, has broken down and is confined to her bed in the Hotel Plaza.

"I am so sick and so thoroughly disturbed over the disgusting affair that I have just broken down," she said. "My husband is also confined to his bed as a result of this affair.

"They did not ask our blessing or our permission. They knew full well how we felt about it. They knew that we condemned it. There can be no reconciliation or forgiveness. I will not again receive my daughter.

"As for this man Gibson, he can never set foot in our home. In saying that I have said a multitude of things.

"Friends have told me that the two have left the city. I have verified that. I know where they are but there can be no communication between them and us, nor will I tell their whereabouts."

FAMILIES FORBADE MARRIAGE.

The marriage or any thought of the marriage, was distinctly frowned on and forbidden by both families.

From other sources it was learned that Mrs. Gibson and her husband left on their honeymoon very suddenly on Saturday. From the Hotel Devon, at No. 70 West Fifty-fifth street, where the former Mrs. Pratt was stopping, the pair sent their trunks and baggage to the Grand Central station. From there it was rechecked to the West Shore terminal.

Later in the day the pair boarded a train for a point in the Adirondacks. It was rumored that they had gone to Paul Smith's hotel, at Paul Smith's, Franklin County, New York.

Clerks at the Hotel Devon denied knowing the couple's present address, saying they had kept it a secret. When Mrs. Benjamin was asked if Paul Smith's was their destination, she replied:

"I hardly think that Preston Gibson would show up there again."

She declined, however, to explain her meaning and refused to answer further questions.

Asked if her daughter would not forfeit her interest in the large family estate as a result of her marriage, Mrs. Benjamin replied:

"I will have conference with several lawyers this week and you will see what we will do in the matter."

MAY LOSE FORTUNE.

Mrs. William Evarts Benjamin is the daughter of the late Henry H. Rogers, Standard Oil magnate. She inherited several millions from her father's estate.

President Gibson, Washington society man and amateur dramatic author, and Mrs. Benjamin Pratt were married in Greenwich, Ct., by Justice of the Peace Radford after the Rev. Minor Howard, pastor of the Diamond Hill Methodist Episcopal Church, had refused to perform the ceremony. The pastor said the two appeared before him without a license and added:

"I probably would not have married them anyway, because both have been divorced."

Mr. Gibson has been twice divorced, it was learned. Mrs. Pratt's former husband was Captain Alexander Dallas Bache Pratt, U. S. A. As the granddaughter of the late H. H. Rogers, she is heiress to several millions.

CHANCELLOR TELLS OF MISERY OF AUSTRIAN PEOPLE

(Note.—Here is the full text of the remarkable message sent to the staff correspondent of the Boston American at Berlin, Mr. Karl H. von Wiegand, by the Austrian Chancellor, a brief summary of which was cabled Saturday.)

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Berlin, Oct. 20.—I have just received a long personal message from Dr. Karl Renner, Chancellor of the Austrian Republic, which, in answer to my telegraphic inquiry as to the actual food and coal situation in Vienna, describes the misery in the Austrian capital in graphic terms. The message fully bears out recent reports that unless relief reaches the Austrian capital forthwith, a terrible catastrophe will be inevitable. Here is Chancellor Renner's telegram:

"Wiegand, Berlin.

"If the American people had any idea of the misery and suffering reigning today in Vienna they would certainly not refuse their aid. Through America's activity for the relief of children, hundreds of thousands of Vienna's little ones were given nourishment and strength.

"Through that America has earned for herself the greatest gratitude of our people. It would be a ray of hope if we could hear that this great work of humanity could be continued yet for a time.

VIENNA ON LOWEST RATIONS.

"A truly terrifying scarcity of food prevails in Austria, more especially in Vienna, with its close to half a million inhabitants.

"Vienna has been fed upon a basis of rations which medical experts considered absolutely essential as a minimum of nourishment. Even that minimum could not be supplied, and the present situation may be realized when it is said that the amount less than the minimum, which is more properly described as 'hunger ration,' is no longer available for our people.

"With the utmost efforts we have succeeded in temporarily maintaining the bread ration, but we have been compelled repeatedly to reduce the rations of flour for cooking purposes and since only a few days' supplies are on hand in Vienna, another reduction for next week will be inevitable.

"The meat rations, which for some time past have been only one-fifth of a pound weekly per person, have had to be suspended entirely for the coming week because no meat is available, while for the week following there will be enough for one distribution and that ration will go only to part of the population.

"Fresh milk for babies up to one year old, for nursing mothers, and for the sick is obtainable in Vienna only in greatly reduced quantities.

"In order to meet the most urgent requirements as best as possible, condensed milk is distributed for children from two to six years old, but again only to a most modest extent, for even the supply of this is nearing its end.

ALL REMEDIES FAILED.

"This terrible situation in Vienna obtains since the day that the credits granted by the allied powers to Austria were exhausted. With every means in our power remedial measures have been sought, but in vain.

"The timely bringing in of our own harvests has been delayed by lack of coal and gasoline. We cannot calculate upon any great supplies from our own harvests for Vienna in the near future. Besides, our own soil cannot possibly deliver sufficient food for the capital.

"The carrying out of agreements closed with neighboring States, especially Jugo-Slavia, for grains is hindered by the breakdown of transportation and financial difficulties, so that also that source cannot deliver any large quantities to Vienna in the immediate future.

FINANCES ARE DESPERATE.

"Overseas grain has been purchased but in view of Austria's finances, only small quantities which assured supplies for only one month, could be procured, and even there the lack of transportation means added difficulties.

"The financial situation is rendered so desperate through the permanent decline of the Austrian kroner (normally 19½ cents, now 1 cent), that buying food supplies out of our own means of payments is wholly out of the question.

"To this critical state of affairs must be added the catastrophal coal famine. Austria produces but a minimum part of her coal consumption and in the main has been dependent on imports from Upper Silesia, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Repeatedly agreements have been concluded with these States, but they were never carried out.

"The causes for this are, chiefly, reduced production, transportation difficulties and the prevailing political conditions. For months we have made desperate efforts to obtain coal, in which we were supported by the allied missions in a most commendable manner. Despite all these efforts and all promises the situation today is simply awful.

"Even railroad traffic has had to be reduced. Only very few trains are running, and these are irregular and extremely slow. Almost daily food trains are stalled because of lack of the necessary coal.

"Recently house-holders in Vienna received on the average only two and one-tenth pounds of coal per day, and Winter is coming on. Street car traffic has been wholly suspended for the entire next week.

MUST SELL ART TREASURES.

"At night the city is wrapped in darkness, of course, the greater part of the industries are at a standstill for lack of coal, the result of which is unemployment and absence of exports, which explains the status of our money abroad.

"Only extensive credit can save us. How serious the situation is may be gathered from the fact that we shall be compelled within a few days to begin selling abroad our art treasures.

"To keep the population for a few days from dying of hunger, we have to sell some of the priceless specimens of Austrian art.

"It is very questionable whether the people of Vienna will have sufficient coal to cook. Heating living rooms will be quite out of the question. Even the hospitals have no supply of coal.

MANY THOUSANDS STARVED.

"These conditions give cause for the greatest fears. It is hardly possible to imagine the suffering that will grow out of this for the population whose strength and vitality already are so reduced through privations of the last five years.

"Naturally the children, the aged, and the sick are most exposed to this misery. Many thousands already have fallen victims to the continuous under-nourishment. Even though the death certificate gives some disease as the cause. Especially children mortality has enormously increased.

MUST RESTORE TRADE.

"Of course, no one can guarantee that no outbreaks, born of despair will come, if help is not given at the earliest possible moment. That help should above all else be in credits for food and raw materials, further in cars and locomotives for transporting foodstuffs.

"One thing should be done—that is, to make an end to the present condition of affairs under which every country, yes, every village, bars the sending of food to other places. Unrestricted traffic, trade from people to people, from place to place, must be restored."

Irish Promise War Against English if Denied Republic

Manchester, Oct. 20. — Arthur Griffiths, acting president of the Irish Republic, said in a speech here:

"If England grants us an independent Republic, the Irish will be peaceful neighbors, but if that is denied, there can be no peace and the war will continue not merely against the four millions in Ireland, but against the whole English race."

GERMANS FEAR MOVE TO SPLIT REPUBLIC

Berlin Aroused at Allies' Attempt to Establish Separate Legation in Bavaria

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—German government circles are much disturbed over the alleged intention of France and England to establish separate diplomatic relations with Bavaria by opening legations and sending ministers to Munich. A covert effort to break up the national unity of the German republic is seen here in the intended move.

FRENCHMAN IN MUNICH.

Professor Haguenin, head of the French Political Mission to Berlin, was recently in Munich and went from there to Paris. On his return he is reported to have said that both the French and British governments will insist upon diplomatic representatives at Munich and will establish legations there.

The belief is expressed that an effort is to be made to play Munich against Berlin and gradually to create a political gulf between north and south Germany. The question is raised as to whether under the new national constitution Bavaria can enter into separate diplomatic relations with other countries.

DISAGREEABLE POSITION.

The plan would quickly be frustrated if the Bavarian government replies when it is approached that it cannot enter into diplomatic relations apart from Berlin. It is admitted, however, that this would place the Bavarian government in the disagreeable position of having to admit that it had surrendered the sovereign independence of which Bavarians are so proud.

PHONE BOOTH FIRE MENACES B. & A. STATION

Springfield, Oct. 20.—Employes of the Boston and Albany Railroad during the first day of instructions in safety first under the direction of the National Railroad Administration Safety Committee, had their first forcible lesson when a cigar or cigarette stub thrown carelessly in a telephone booth caused a $5,000 fire that for a time threatened the Boston and Albany Railroad station.

The blaze was not discovered until it had worked its way to the ceiling of the building and burst through the south side of the waiting room.

Japan Is Grabbing All World's Commerce, Says Frenchman

By Universal Service.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Paris, Oct. 20.—"We know nothing about Japan except lacquer boxes, and the Japs find it useful to leave us in ignorance, but they act as conquerors," writes Raymond Lestonnat in L'Intransigeant.

"Moreover, they are conquerors, in the absolute meaning of the word. They are advancing ruthlessly, whether by sword or hammer, knowing what they want, getting it, and paying the price if necessary.

"Japan today is on the way toward cornering the business and transportation in the Philippine and other Pacific islands. Not satisfied with the Far East, they now aim at domination in the Mediterranean and Atlantic, and even in the North Sea. In all these waters Japanese ships are today seen more often than ever."

The writer then points out in detail the Japanese plans for becoming the greatest shipping nation. The Nippon Yusen Kaiher line, doing business between New York and Calcutta via Colombo and Cape Town, is now organizing a service between Yokohama and Europe which will touch every stopping place formerly used by the British, French, Dutch and German lines.

"The European and American commercial fleets must henceforward reckon with a terrible competition," continues the writer. "The Japanese shipping companies are powerfully strong. Nothing can weaken their determination to beat foreign lines, and they have already started out to corner the world's biggest shipping business.

"The same is true as regards the steel business. America's steel embargo in 1917 only strengthened Japan's determination to shake off the bondage of foreign supply. Since then the Japanese output has increased 50 per cent., and as a result the Japanese metal market is lost to America."

MANY RUSSIAN SOCIETY WOMEN WORK IN LONDON

London, Oct. 20.—Women once prominent in Petrograd society are working in London for $1.50 a day. But for the fact that Lady Buchanan has turned Chesham House, once the scene of brilliant society functions, into a workroom, the lot of these Russian aristocrats would be much worse.

"I have 300 women on my lists," Lady Buchanan says. "Many of these workers came to England without a penny and with only the clothes they were wearing. I had a refugee come to me recently who had a bundle of notes—$100,000 roubles—but not a sixpence in the world. No bank would look at the notes."

TEACHERS TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR MORE PAY

Boston school teachers will hold a "Get Together" meeting, Tuesday, at the Twentieth Century Club at 4:30. Miss Anna G. Scollard, the new president, will preside. Miss Julia Sullivan, chairman of the legislative committee, will outline the legislative work of the club with regard to salary increases for the teachers. Miss Mabel Anderson, chairman of the press committee, will speak on the work of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation.

The indorsement given the Red Cross war work by the Massachusetts branch of the American Legion at its State convention in Worcester has been gratefully acknowledged in a letter from James Jackson, New England manager of the Red Cross, to Colonel Edward L. Logan, State commander of the legion. "The support of those who fought for American rights," Mr. Jackson said, "is the finest indorsement any organization could hope to have."

U. S. GIRLS LOVE TOO MUCH, SAYS JAP EXPERT

Foreign Women Physicians Claim They Are Kept Young by Wooing

By Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Do American girls love too energetically? Dr. Tomo Inouye, of Tokyo, the famous Japanese physician who boasts that she never feels tired, believes that American girls look tired, while Japanese girls never look tired. She thinks that American girls waste too much energy in love affairs.

The midget physician's contention ran afoul of much opposition on the part of a majority of the thirty-five women physicians from different countries all over the earth, who spent sixteen hours here in seeing the sights of Washington and who returned to New York later.

Dr. Kristine Munsch of Christiania, Norway, maintains that love affairs will keep girls young, and her assertion was seconded by Dr. Alma Sundquist of Stockholm, who likewise believes that love gives the bloom of youth and beauty to women. She thinks, however, that American women spend too much energy in rushing from one place to another, and that they do not get enough out-of-door exercise.

"In Sweden," she said, "we walk out into the country a great deal and take time to sit down in lovely places to think over our impressions. You never have time here to digest what you see."

The women physicians were presented to Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, Mrs. Robert Lansing, Surgeon General Ireland and Mrs. Ireland, Admiral Braisted and Mrs. Braisted and Colonel Delaney and Mrs. Delaney.

DOCTOR SUES SOCIETY PEOPLE FOR HURT AUTO

Newport, R. I., Oct. 20.—Suits of $25,000 each have been brought in the Superior Court against Rodman Wanamaker, 2nd, and Mrs. Archibald C. Thompson of Narragansett Pier, by Dr. William A. Sherman of this city as the result of his automobile being run into and damaged while standing outside of his house on Touro street on the night of August 26.

The declaration in the two suits alleges that the damage was caused by an automobile of the defendants driven by their agent while under the influence of liquor. The suits are brought by Dr. Sherman through his attorneys, Sheffield and Harvey.

The Reason

The House of Hovey Retires from the Wholesale Business

It has ever been the policy of this store to use guardedly the term "Sale," in presenting merchandise facts to the public.

In these days of soaring high prices it will come as a high note of relief to our clientele to realize that our retirement from the wholesale business, after almost half a century of continued success, is the means of offering the unusual in value.

A retail business that is growing by leaps and bounds, beyond our highest expectations, makes it insistent upon us to devote our entire energies in the development of direct-to-consumer selling.

Our enormous wholesale stock, purchased far below prices now current, will be placed on the market, department by department, so as to give the public the benefit of what we really know to be remarkable value.

BIG BIRTHDAY CAKE IS CUT AT HANOVER

150 Candles Blaze Forth at Anniversary Luncheon on Dartmouth Campus

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 20.—A cake six feet in diameter and blazing with 150 candles was the central feature of the campus luncheon which was one of the big features of the 150th anniversary celebration at Dartmouth today, the last day of the anniversary exercises. The luncheon followed the chapel exercises and an academic procession around the campus to Webster Hall.

At the hall, Rev. Dr. Francis Edward Clark of Boston, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, gave the invocation, and felicitations were delivered by Herman Wilson Newell, '20, for the undergraduates; Professor Edwin Julius Bartlett, for the faculty; William Tuck Abbott, '90, for the alumni; Frederick Sheets Jones of Yale, for the Fellowship of Colleges, and Governor John Henry Bartlett for the State of New Hampshire.

SING ANNIVERSARY ODE.

The anniversary ode, with words by Francis Lane Childs, assistant professor of English, and music by Leonard Beecher McWhood, professor of music, was rendered by the college glee club and orchestra. Wendell Phillips Stafford, assistant judge of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, spoke on "The College a Training School for Public Service." President Marion Leroy Burton of the University of Minnesota on "What Must the College Do," and Professor Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth gave the invocation.

Following the cutting of the big cake at the luncheon, there was a pageant depicting the history of Dartmouth. The afternoon was taken up with conference. Professor Charles Darwin Adams presided at the language section, where the speakers were President William Allen Neilson of Smith College, Professor Irving Babbitt of Harvard and Arthur Fairbanks of Boston, director of the Museum of Fine Arts. The topic was "The Humanity, Old and New, in College Education."

LEARNED DISCUSSIONS.

Professor Bartlett presided over the mathematical and scientific section, which discussed "The Place of Science in the American College," with the following principal speakers: Frank Baldwin Jewett, chief engineer of the Western Electric Company, Dean Alfred Edward Burton of "Tech," and Dean Francis William Magie of Princeton.

The social section discussed "The Duty of the College in Training for Citizenship," with Herbert Darling Foster presiding and the following speakers: Professor Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, President Kenyon Leech Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and President Alexander Meiklejohn of Amherst.

This evening there will be a dinner in College Hall, with the following speakers: Former President Ernest Fox Nichols of Dartmouth, President Frederick Carlos Ferry of Hamilton College, U. S. Senator George Higgins Moses, President William Herbert Perry Faunce of Brown University, Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, and Dean Craven Laycock of Dartmouth.

Two Women Stifled in Bed Indicate Suicide Pact

New Bedford, Oct. 20.—Circumstances indicating a suicide pact accompanied the deaths of Mrs. Mary Barros, thirty-two, and Mrs. Theresa Duarte, twenty-nine, whose bodies were found in the house at No. 44 Mosher street. Both women were in bed. The door leading into the room and all the windows were closed and gas was flowing from an open jet.

The women had been life-long friends. Mrs. Barros, whose home was in Falmouth, was visiting Mrs. Duarte, who lived at the Mosher street address. The bodies were found by Mrs. Julia Nichols, who occupied rooms in the same house. She smelled the escaping gas and notified the police.

CANDIDATE LONG TO SPEAK AT 240 RALLIES

Richard H. Long, candidate for Governor, and other members of the State ticket expect to hold 240 more rallies in the remaining two weeks before the election. Tonight the candidates will go first to North Adams and will be assisted in the speaking program by District Attorney Thomas C. Maher, County Commissioner William F. Crenier, Senator Alfred H. Brouthers, Representative William H. Broderick and Thomas F. Flaherty. Rallies will be held later in the evening at Adams, where Representative Frank C. Wiothauper will preside, and at Pittsfield, where James J. Devanny will be in charge. Tuesday night meetings will be held at Woburn, Melrose, Malden, Medford and Everett.

BOYS WITH SLINGSHOTS BREAK WINTHROP LIGHTS

As a result of numerous complaints that street lights are being broken all over Winthrop, Chief of Police McNeil has started a crusade against boys with slingshots. Already many boys have lost their favorite plaything, and have been warned that a second offense will land them in court. The complaints were chiefly from persons who had to walk home in the dark and from the "trouble" man from the electric lighting company.

OFFER REMEDY TO IMPROVE TRAFFIC

Boston Citizens Have Variety of Suggestions to Relieve Congestion

Answers to the question "What can be done to improve traffic conditions in Boston" have begun to pour in upon the Boston American Traffic Editor.

One man believes that autoists and teamsters who turn to the left are responsible for most of the congestion. He would have novel traffic signs at all corners, particularly of one-way streets.

Another man believes that the only solution is the widening of a number of streets, at no matter how great a cost.

Still another wants express traffic barred from certain streets, and again another suggests taking back the former policemen.

The columns of this paper are open to those who think they know the remedy. All communications should be addressed to the Traffic Editor, Boston American.

SOLUTION EASY.

Charlestown, Mass.
Oct. 17, 1919.

Traffic Editor, Boston American.

Dear Sir—A solution of the traffic problem of Boston is easy if we do as in other cities. That is, confine express traffic and hauling traffic to certain streets. Such traffic should be kept off Boylston and Tremont streets, where congestion is greatest, unless the expressmen or teamsters have something to deliver within two blocks.

We will find this the easiest way out.

CHARLES C. CHENEY.
No. 98 Main street.

DO NOT TURN TO LEFT

Traffic Editor, Boston American.

Dear Sir: In reference to improving traffic conditions, it is the vehicle that turns to the left that holds the traffic up. Why not have signs at the most important cross streets, "Do not turn to the left?"

For instance, when traffic is signalled to proceed north on Washington at Summer and Winter streets, it is the vehicle that turns into Winter street that holds up traffic and confuses pedestrians.

Vehicles coming into town and wishing to stop on Tremont street, in the shopping district, could detour through Park square, Broadway or Eliot street. It would be a little further, but time and congestion would be saved. Vehicles wishing to enter Winter street could detour so as to come up Summer street. Another way for incoming vehicles to reach the shopping district would be to come in Beacon street.

Thus, my suggestion is place signs "Do not turn to the left" at cross streets in the congested section.

GEORGE KING.
No. 33 Summer street.

PUT POLICE BACK

Traffic Editor, Boston American.

Dear Sir—The only solution that I can give to the traffic problem is to put the police back on the job and the quicker they do it the better. That's the whole thing in a nutshell.

MARK ZELTZER.
No. 31 Genesee street.

SHOULD WIDEN STREETS.

Traffic Editor, Boston American.

Dear Sir—There is only one solution of congestion in the streets of Boston, and at the meeting held by the Street Commissioners nobody advocated it.

The only remedy that can be obtained will cost money. My plan is as follows: Widen Eliot and Kneeland streets to 100 feet as far as South street, then widen South and Devonshire streets, to Franklin. The widening process should be carried along Franklin street through Congress to Haymarket square, making a 100-foot street from Park square to the North Station.

Seventy-five per cent. of the traffic on Washington and Tremont streets is bound to the South Station, the market district, State street and Atlantic avenue, and going south the traffic goes in all directions after leaving Park square. If Tremont, Boylston and Washington streets were widened the congestion would be the same. Give traffic a new street and the problem is solved.

Yours truly,
CHARLES FISHEL.

Don't Forget to Set Your Clock Back Saturday Night

Following your bath next Saturday night, when you wind the clock and put out the cat, don't forget at the same time to set it back an hour, in accordance with the ending of daylight saving.

This will probably be the last time this wartime act will have to be considered, since Congress has passed over the President's veto a bill repealing the daylight saving measure, unless Congress again considers the matter, which is believed unlikely.

Setting back the timepieces formally takes place at 2 o'clock next Sunday morning, so the forgetful ones who fail to follow this procedure will waken to find that they have robbed themselves of an extra hour's snooze.

PIANO PLAYING OF CARDINAL A REVELATION

Work as Accompanist for O'Sullivan Excites Interest of Catholic Women's Council

Wherever members of the Council of Catholic Women met today there was but one topic of conversation—Cardinal O'Connell's ability as a pianist.

It all happened because the cardinal volunteered to accompany the Irish tenor, John O'Sullivan, at a concert the council held at the Notre Dame Academy in the Fenway.

"If the cardinal hadn't given himself to the church the world would have another great musician," was the way Mrs. Francis E. Slattery, president of the council, summarized the incident today.

"Mr. O'Sullivan did not have his regular accompanist with him," said Mrs. Slattery. "The selection he wished to sing was 'The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls.' The printed music was in the wrong key for Mr. O'Sullivan's voice and so it was necessary to transpose it into the key of F. The accompanist who had been playing for Mr. O'Sullivan was afraid to attempt it.

"There was a moment of embarrassment, sensed by Monsignor M. J. Splaine of St. Joseph's, Roxbury, who asked the cardinal if he would not step into the breach.

STEPPED INTO BREACH.

"The cardinal hesitated a moment—then evidently wishing to have the program go off smoothly, arose and seated himself at the piano.

"A momentary hush and the tinkling introduction came in full, certain notes and the singer was off with the words. And as the cardinal played he transposed with the ease of the finished musician he is.

"As Mr. O'Sullivan's last note died away all we women rose and applauded, not alone the singer, but the cardinal, who became the centre of dramatic interest.

"The cardinal, with his inimitable smile, seemed greatly pleased over his little surprise, and graciously consented to give us an encore, which he did with the same musicianship as before and entirely from memory. It was a very pleasurable incident."

The incident recalls another time when the cardinal surprised a group of transatlantic travelers en route to Europe. One evening in the salon, when the passengers had gathered for a little music, several good singers and young women pianists contributed to the program of entertainment.

PLAYS OPERATIC NUMBER.

As will happen at such times, somebody called for a selection that the young woman at the piano could play from memory. It was from one of the difficult operatic scores. One of the cardinal's suite suggested that possibly the archbishop, for the cardinal was then archbishop, might favor with the requested selection.

The cardinal seated himself at the piano, and with the sure precision of the accomplished pianist, played that selection, and then played entirely from memory whatever the group of passengers requested. The cardinal's ability as a pianist from that moment became the talk of the ship, and until the voyage was ended, everybody was loud in praise for the human qualities of the great churchman from Boston.

AUTHOR OF MANY HYMNS.

It, maybe, is not known to all admirers of Cardinal O'Connell that he is the composer of a book of hymns used in all the parochial schools of the diocese. It is called "The Cardinal's Hymn Book." Some of the best loved of the hymns are "The Blessed Virgin," "The Crown and the Flag," "Hymn to the Holy Name," "Hymn to the Blessed Son," "Hymn to the Holy Trinity," "The Holy Spirit," "Hymn to St. Joseph," "Guardian Angel," "Hymn for Christmas," "Easter Hymn," "Faith and Fatherland."

Pope Looks to U. S. as Field for Religious Development

New York, Oct. 20.—The following message from Pope Benedict to the Roman Catholic people of the United States has just been announced by the Most Rev. John Bonzano, apostolic delegate to the United States:

"Many are looking to the United States as the centre of commercial, industrial, economic and material interests. We consider America, instead, as a promising field for the development of religious, moral and charitable principles.

"Considering the importance of the United States, the realization of our hopes and desires would bring to the entire world an immediate benefit."

I. W. W. LEADER HELD IN $3,000 FOR GRAND JURY

Joseph J. Jones, 45, was fined the maximum of $20 for distributing I. W. W. literature, and then held in $3,000 for the Grand Jury by Judge Hayden in the Roxbury Court today. Jones was arrested three weeks ago while passing out handbills on Tremont street. He was charged with violating a city ordinance. He is a delegate of the I. W. W., it is claimed.

RAISE $250,000 FOR JEWISH CHARITY

Preliminary subscriptions aggregating $250,000 were made by prominent Jewish business men of Boston to the [illegible] campaign for the Federated Jewish Charities which formally began today and will last ten days.

The subscriptions were made at a banquet attended by Boston Jewish philanthropists in the Elysium Club, No. 218 Huntington avenue, where the drive was inaugurated. Addresses were made by Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, U. S. M. [illegible] A., and ex-Colonel M. A. [illegible], both of whom came to Boston from New York especially to open the drive here.

Louis E. Kirstein, Boston chairman of the campaign for the benefit of the Federated Jewish Charities, toastmaster at the banquet, personally contributed $[illegible] in behalf of himself and Mrs. Kirstein. Donations of $10,000 each were made by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. [illegible], A. C. Ratshesky, Max Mitchell and Lazar Agoos in behalf of himself and his two sons, Samuel L. and Solomon Agoos. A contribution of $11,000 was secured by certain branches of the United Hebrew Trades of Boston, and the Jews of East Boston donated $2,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis [illegible] subscribed $7,500 and sums of $5,000 each were given by the following: [illegible] Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. A. Koshland, Mr. and Mrs. J. Eiseman, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. L. Eiseman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Koshland, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rosenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strauss, Mr. and Mrs. M. Rosenthal, H. B. and M. W. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Ratshesky, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon [illegible] and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ackerman.

Ludwig Eiseman offered to make his subscription $7,500 if nine others who had contributed $5,000 would each give $2,500 additional.

Major Benjamin Harrison of Everett is out to be elected mayor of that city, provided the voters will give him sufficient support to survive the municipal primaries.

Mayor William H. Weeks will go after a third term, having received the endorsement of the Everett Veterans' League and ex-Mayor John J. Mullen is a candidate again with a low tax rate platform.

FUEL OIL RAIL RATES FIGHT IS BEGUN

The transportation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, of which Robert L. [illegible] is chairman, has begun a fight to secure a reduction on the rail rates of fuel oil from New England ports to interior points.

The committee declares that the present rates are exorbitant, as it now costs $1.78 a ton to haul oil from Chelsea to East Cambridge, while coal can be transported 150 miles for $1.19 a ton. The Railroad Administration has proposed a rate of $2.70 a ton on fuel oil, which is an important factor in many industries. This rate would cover 150 miles, in contrast to the rate of $1.43 on coal.

The committee points out that fuel companies furnish their own cars, and that the railroads are not forced to stand losses by pilfering or rough handling. A ton of oil, furthermore, is 2,000 pounds, as against 2,240 pounds for coal.

The committee has asked the directors of the Chamber for authority to take any action they may think necessary to establish reasonable rates. In case they are unable to obtain satisfaction from the Railroad Administration, the committee has asked authority to join with other organizations in a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Boston is the home of finest upholstered furniture —Perhaps PAINE'S UPHOLSTERING SHOP has helped to bring this distinction to this city.

Painting and Decorating furniture today demands real artists — See them in PAINE'S FINISHING ROOMS.

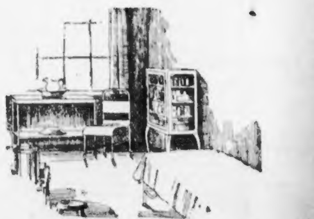
PAINE'S CABINET OR WOODWORKING SHOPS take one back to the famous craftsmen of the 18th century.

Demonstrating that WOOD CARVING is by no means a lost art.

If better bedding could be made, Paine would make it—is the motto of THE BEDDING SHOP.

Rubbing down a fine mahogany dining table to get that rich, dull-rubbed top—in PAINE'S FINISHING ROOMS.

IN THE DRAPERY WORKROOM showing how Paine curtains are made and "hung" with the same critical care as a woman's gown.



A FIRST AID HOSPITAL for the comfort and safety of those engaged in Paine industries.

Visit Paine's Factories and Workrooms

ON the upper floors of Paine's store are the factories and workrooms. Here under most modern and improved conditions, expert craftsmen build Paine Furniture and Decorations. Here one may select the "stock" and watch it day by day converted into a beautiful library table—may see the wood-carvers carefully moulding a mere block of wood into a real work of art—may see why Paine upholstered chairs are so comfortable, and why Paine bedding is so luxurious and satisfying. May see much more of intense interest—so why not visit Paine Factories and Workrooms.

DIFFICULT indeed to analyze success, but it is fair to assume that the factories and workrooms are one of the prime reasons for the dominating position occupied by this famous Boston institution, now recognized as the world's largest store in the manufacture and sale of furniture and decorations.

Stocks Strong in New York and Boston; Trading Active in Both the Markets

MOTORS CLIMB AND OILS FOLLOW

Steels Heavy and Equipments Irregular, While Tire Issues Advance

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, with motors leading the list for gains and oils and tires following. Steels and equipments were irregular, with the former showing a rather heavy tone. Prices ruled below the best level at the end of the morning. Trading was largely in automobile and allied issues. First hour transactions totalled more than 460,000 shares.

Issues to sell at highest record prices in the forenoon were American International, Hide and Leather preferred, Mullins Body, White Motors, Pierce Arrow, Endicott Johnson, Pressed Steel Car, American Woolen common, Ship and Commerce, Kelly Springfield, American Bosch Magneto, General Motors and Transcontinental Oil. Highs for the year were made by American Beet Sugar and New York Air Brake.

Call money opened at 8 per cent. In the foreign exchange market quotations were demand sterling 4.15, cables 4.15¾, francs 8.66 to 8.68, lire 10.15 to 10.17, Swiss 5.61 to 5.63, guilders 37 15-16 to 37⅞, pesetas 19.20 to 19.05, Belgian 8.61 to 8.62, marks 3.65 to 3.60, kronen 87.

BEGAN WEEK WITH ADVANCE.

The market began the week by advancing, nine issues selling at highest record prices within a few minutes and gains being the rule throughout the list. Motors were the early feature, while most equipments showed strength on initial sales. Steels were irregular at the start and were less active than usual. Their range was narrow at the beginning. Most of the standard oils were comparatively quiet, activity in this group being shown by Midwest and Union Oil, newcomers to the list. Shipping shares were in demand, American Ship and Commerce leading this class in activity and gains. American Woolen common was one of the strongest issues. Mullins Body advanced three points the first hour, its directors having declared initial quarterly dividends of 75 cents a share on common stock, and $2 on preferred. Over Sunday buying by the public was a bull influence, while covering by shorts was resumed at the opening.

MONEY SITUATION BETTER.

The money situation is construed as more favorable to speculation. At the end of the week there was less tension, the call rate declining to 6 per cent. Within a few days it had been up to 15 per cent., its highest not only for the Autumn, but for the Summer. The appearance in the Wall Street district of funds from the interior of the country was regarded as evidence that the strain of crop moving is over. Less demand from the government is expected. The U. S. Treasury is in a more comfortable position in regard to cash. The New York bank statement gave satisfaction, loans decreasing $60,000,000, while surplus reserve increased about $14,000,000 during the week. But the weakness of foreign exchange rates chilled hopes of a speedy expansion of export trade. There are no signs of an immediate improvement in that direction.

Wall Street Briefs

The U. S. Rubber Co. reports for the first half of this year surplus after charges and Federal taxes of $10,815,750, which is equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $23.01 a share on common stock, compared with $21.64 for the corresponding 1918 period.

Endicott Johnson net profits are estimated to approximate $1,500,000 a month at present, or at the rate of $80 a share per annum on common stock, after allowing for the preferred dividend, but before taxes and depreciation.

Central Leather Co. is expected to show net profits of more than $5,000,000 for the third quarter of 1919. This is equivalent to more than $11 a share on common stock after preferred dividends. June quarter earnings were $9.21, and for the March quarter they were $8.85.

Winslow, Taylor & Company, Unlisted Securities Exchange, Inc., Stickney Rawlinson & Colclough, Leonard, Chandler & Dopp, Morton & Company, Warner, Wilson & Company and J. D. Lowe & Company have been appointed agents for the sale of American Cinema Corporation stock, 30,000 shares of which Johnson & Hopkins Co. of New York are offering to the public at $10 a share.

Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. are offering at $105 and accrued dividend, to yield 7.60 per cent., a block of cumulative convertible preferred stock of the Pierce Oil Corporation. This is the balance of the original issue of $15,000,000 preferred, about $9,200,000 of the issue having been used for conversion of the company's debentures or disposed of by private sale.

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co.

The Directors of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per share on the preferred capital stock, payable November 1, 1919, to stockholders of record October 21, 1919.

F. W. BATCHELDER, Secretary.

THE PULLMAN COMPANY

DIVIDEND NO. 211

A quarterly dividend of two dollars per share will be paid November 15th, 1919, to stockholders of record at close of business October 31st, 1919.

DAVIS DALY IS A BOSTON FEATURE

Local Exchange List Marked by Gains During the Forenoon

Strength and breadth featured the Boston market after a firm opening. Four issues sold at record highest prices on the local exchange within a few minutes. They were Mullins Body, Parish and Bingham, Davis Daly and Libby. The three first named opened at record highs. Mullins Body responded immediately to initial dividend declarations and Davis Daly to statements regarding the richness of the ore recently uncovered in its property. It was the feature among mining stocks.

Other strong issues during the morning were Punta Alegre, which also sold at its record highest; National Leather, Root & Van Dervoort, Walworth, Swift & Co., Swift International, Quincy, Fairbanks and Mexican Investment. At their highest they were up from one to more than two points. Fractional gains were made by Elder, Gray & Davis, Carson Hill, Waldorf and North Butte.

Among issues to decline were Edison, International Products and Pond Creek, they receding from fractions to two points.

Swifts rights were strong and active. Most of the trading was in auto accessory and packing shares.

TAKES GLOOMY VIEW OF EUROPE'S PLIGHT

Frank A. Vanderlip takes a gloomier view than ever of Europe's post-war plight. He says that the situation there has grown worse in four months and that neither England, France nor Italy has an adequate amount to pay for the things they want. He thinks that the United States government has gone far enough in extending credit and, that banking credit cannot afford the relief required.

"The situation demands," he says, "long term or at least a term of several years in the credits that are to be granted, and that isn't a thing that banks ought to do. There should be the creation of some security that will go to the investors of the country that will provide the funds to get Europe back to work, and, unless that is done, the tragedy that Europe faces will be one that will be in danger of having extended to us."

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Oct. 20.—Firm cables were offset by clear weather in the cotton belt and opening prices on the cotton market were somewhat irregular. After the call prices dropped about 20 points from Saturday's close, but under trade buying the list recovered nearly all its loss. Opening prices were: October, 34.25, up 18; December, 34.28, off 2; January, 34.07, off 1; March, 33.75, up 6; May, 33.40, unchanged; July, 33.18, off 4.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Corn opened ¼c to ⅜c higher. Oats were ¼c lower to ¼c higher. Provisions opened lower. Opening prices were: Corn—December, 1.27; May, 1.25. Oats—December, 71⅞ to 72; May, 74¾. Lard—January, 24.87. Ribs—January, 17.90.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, Oct. 20.—The sub-treasury gained $837,000 from the banks on Saturday, reducing the cash net loss since Friday to $8,885,000.

OFFER VERDE MINES AND MILLING STOCK

J. D. Lowe & Co., bankers and brokers at 89 State street, is offering Verde Mines and Milling stock, which is listed and traded in on the Boston Curb Exchange. In regard to the value of this property, this firm says it is located near two of the largest and richest producers of gold, silver and high-grade coppers in the world, and that it is the intention of the management to work the mines to fullest capacity for all three metals.

"Very soon," it is stated, "the whole world will call on the United States for copper and the Orient and other countries will increase their demand for silver and the United States will soon begin to pay its obligations, which must be paid in gold; and then you will find everyone desirous of purchasing, and all at once, the stock of mining companies which are producing the three metals."

Fire Prevention Lecture

The fire prevention campaign being conducted by the U. S. Grain Corporation will be brought to Boston on Friday next, when Dr. H. H. Brown of the Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture, will deliver an illustrated lecture to grain, elevator and milling men of this section at the Boston Chamber of Commerce at 3 o'clock on the grain-dust explosion. The motion picture reel which illustrates Dr. Brown's talk shows the effects of explosions at Port Colborne, Cedar Rapids, Kansas City and Buffalo.

Price of Sugar

Washington, Oct. 20.—The United States Sugar Equalization Board has set 10 cents per pound as the price of sugar, less 2 per cent. on the Seaboard basis.

WAGE EARNERS ARE BUYING LUXURIES

In commenting upon the situation the First National Bank of Boston says in its New England letter: "General business continues extremely active, with profitable returns, as indicated in reports from all parts of the country. Industrial concerns are sold well ahead—wholesale distributors are doing a large business, and retail houses report that public buying shows no diminution. This buying is not confined to the necessaries, but dealers in luxuries find an unusual demand for these articles, even at the extremely high prices that prevail. This fact furnishes a complete refutation of the allegation that the high cost of living is causing suffering and compels severe economy, especially as it is the general testimony that the greater part of this buying comes from the wage-earners."

Boston Wool Statistics

Wool shipments from Boston between January 1 and October 16 totalled 103,836,757 pounds compared with 161,909,860 for the corresponding period last year, according to the Commercial Bulletin. Receipts were 385,966,893 pounds against 408,180,684.

Coming Crop Report

It is announced at Washington that on November 8 the Bureau of Crop Estimates will issue a report as to the production and quality of corn, buckwheat, potatoes, sweet potatoes, tobacco, flaxseed, apples, pears, cranberries and peanuts; production only of cloverseed, grain, sorghums, onions, cabbage and sorghum syrup; the percentage of the 1918 corn crop on farms November 1; the average weight per bushel of the wheat, oats and barley crops.

Common Stock (Par Value $25)	$33,000,000	$21,943,450
Class B Common Stock (Par Value $25) Non-voting	$20,000,000	None

As a part of this new financing, all outstanding Ten-year 6% Convertible Gold Debentures of 1924, and all outstanding Five-year Convertible 6% Notes, will be called for payment on January 1, 1920, and December 31, 1919, respectively. Until those dates, respectively, these debentures and notes will be convertible into Common Stock, and in the event and to the extent that this conversion privilege is exercised by them, the amount of issued common stock will be increased beyond the amount above stated.

From the proceeds of this issue, there has been deposited in escrow an amount sufficent to pay all outstanding Debentures and Five-year Notes, leaving the Corporation with a funded debt of approximately $1,000,000, all of which will have matured by December, 1920.

Privilege of Conversion

On or before January 1st, 1923, each share of Preferred Stock can be converted into Class B Common Stock at par ($25.00), that is, four shares of Common for one share of Preferred. Class B Common Stock is in all respects identical with the outstanding Common Stock except that the Class B Common Stock has no voting power.

We summarize as follows from a letter of Mr. H. C. Pierce, Chairman of the Board and President of the Corporation, copies of which may be had from the undersigned upon request:

Business

The Corporation is engaged in all branches of the oil industry, namely, the production, transportation, refining and distribution of petroleum and its products.

Amortization

Within one year after the first day of July, 1922, and within one year after the first day of July in each year thereafter, the Corporation shall, out of surplus or net profits, acquire or redeem, at not to exceed $115 per share plus accrued dividends, an amount of Preferred Stock at least equal to 3% of the largest amount in par value of Preferred Stock issued and outstanding.

Other Charter Provisions

No mortgage, lien or encumbrance of any kind upon any part of the real or personal property of the Corporation (except purchase money liens or liens on accounts receivable or other liquid assets or stocks, bonds or other securities, other than stocks of subsidiary corporations, pledged in the regular and current conduct of its business) shall be created unless previously authorized by the consent of the holders of two-thirds in interest of the Preferred Stock.

No dividend shall be declared on the Common Stock or the Class B Common Stock that would if paid reduce the net current assets of the Corporation and its subsidiary corporations (including tank cars, tank steamers, barges and other vessels, garage and stable equipment, iron barrels and drums and the like) over and above all debts, to a less amount than the par amount of the Preferred Stock then outstanding; nor until (1) the current quarterly dividend on the Preferred Stock as well as all accumulated and defaulted dividends thereon, if any, shall have been paid or set apart, and (2) all arrears in respect of the amortization of Preferred Stock shall have been made good.

Profits

Messrs. Touche, Niven & Co. have certified that for the past three years our profits, after allowing for interest on the debentures and five-year notes that are being redeemed as a result of the preferred stock issue, and after allowing interest on the additional cash capital, are as follows:

	BEFORE the deduction of Federal Income and Profits Tax	AFTER the deduction of Federal Income and Profits Taxes
1916	$2,536,385.36	$2,482,151.26
1917	2,642,441.93	2,446,732.90
1918	4,502,210.81	3,773,726.21

Inasmuch as we had a relatively limited crude oil production of our own during those years, it is reasonable to assume that the development of our Ranger and other properties will add materially to the profits of future years.

The legality of this issue has been approved by Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell, of New York, and Messrs. Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, of New York, representing the Bankers, and Messrs. McAdoo, Cotton & Franklin, of New York, representing the Corporation.

These shares will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange in due course.

About $10,000,000 of the above 8% Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock having been used for the conversion of part of the Debentures or disposed of by private sale, the undersigned offer the remaining amount subject to prior sale and change in price,

AT $105 PER SHARE AND ACCRUED DIVIDEND YIELDING OVER 7.60%

deliverable on or before October 24, 1919, on three days' notice in the form of interim certificates exchangeable for definitive stock certificates when prepared, and payable in New York funds at the office of Messrs. Goldman, Sachs & Co., 60 Wall Street, in the City of New York. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications and also, in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for.

EAGLE BOAT IN DISTRESS OFF CANSO, N. S.

Wireless Tries to Reach No. 41, and Two Tugs Are Sent Out to Find Her

Bar Harbor, Me., Oct. 20.—Radio calls to American eagle boat No. 41, reported in distress off Canso, N. S., were sent out today by the high-powered naval wireless station here. The eagle boat carries a crew of fifty.

An oil tank steamer gave first news of the eagle boat's plight. The tanker wirelessed to the Canadian Marine Department for assistance for the No. 41. Two tugs were started from Canadian ports. The tank steamer, however, failed to give the nature of the mishap to the American craft or to say whether the tanker was standing by.

Genoa, via London, Oct. 20.—The Liner America has just arrived here from New York after a narrow escape. She was tossed about by a terrific cyclone which swept away her upper decks, flinging the boats into the sea like so many pieces of tinder. All those aboard agree that the captain's skill alone saved the ship.

CORNELL SEEKS FIVE MILLIONS FOR SALARIES

More Than 1,000 Alumni in Campaign to Raise a New Endowment

The campaign to raise $5,000,000 additional endowment for Cornell University began today throughout the entire country. More than a thousand alumni started out to solicit donations from Cornell graduates and other friends of the university, to be used for increasing the salaries of the teaching staff.

J. DuPratt White of New York City, who with Walter P. Cooke of Buffalo is alternate chairman of the national campaign committee, announced that telegrams from the various Cornell centres assure that close to a hundred committees, headed by prominent local chairmen, had begun intensive work on the campaign, which will last from October 20 to November 1.

No definite quotas have been assigned to the several committees, according to Mr. White, but New York is planning a campaign for an amount greater than all the rest of the country. The Chicago committee has fixed its own goal at not less than $1,000,000, and Cleveland will try for $500,000.

In a letter sent to each of the local chairmen, President Jacob Gould Schurman outlined the situation and stated what the university expected of its alumni. He declared that not only the faculty of Cornell but the future of the entire teaching profession is at stake. He said that a like increase in salaries is imperative at the other American universities, and that the cause of education is imperilled throughout the country.

President Schurman asserted that unless speedy relief is forthcoming, Cornell will be forced to yield the position of importance in national service which she has won by her half century for achievement.

KELIHER HITS 'UNSOUND POLICY'

Opposition of the Finance Board to Improvements Surprises Sheriff

Sheriff John A. Keliher declared today that the eleventh-hour opposition of the Finance Commission to the improvements at the Charles street jail was unsound policy. The sheriff predicts that the people of Boston will not stand in the way of humane improvements at the county penal institution.

The commission declared in a statement today that the plans should not be carried out. This action on their part, following the favorable report they made on the plans for a new hospital and other improvements, has aroused no end of comment.

Sheriff Keliher sets forth his views in the following letter:

Editor Boston American:

The eleventh hour opposition of the Finance Commission to the scheme to provide hospital facilities, means for the holding of religious services and accommodations for the inmates to eat their meals outside their cells in the Charles street jail, is surprising to say the least.

After exhaustive and expensive investigation embracing the services of leading penologists, criminologists, architects, etc., the Finance Commission approved the scheme submitted by me. They supervised, through a leading firm of architects, the preparation of the specifications for the structure. After all this was done they discovered that the cost of construction had increased amazingly. Then they repudiated all their former recommendations and advised against the scheme, offering in its stead several woefully undigested alternatives. Public opinion has crystallized in favor of this humane improvement.

Mayor Peters has approved it and after most careful consideration the City Council on three different occasions has put its stamp of endorsement upon it and will, undoubtedly, do so again today. To await a return to pre-war prices is a most unsound policy. He who pursues it will pay a heavy financial penalty. Prices will rise rather than lower. The taxpayers of Boston never yet allowed the dollar to stand in the way of protecting human life or properly caring for its unfortunates.

JOHN A. KELIHER.
Sheriff of Suffolk County.

4,000 NAMES ON STATE'S AUTO BLACKLIST

Liquor Still Responsible for Many Accidents; 173,000 Pleasure Cars Registered

The auto "black list" reached 4,000 today.

Meaning: That 4,000 men and women have lost their right to drive their cars, most of them temporarily, some permanently.

The great bulk have been found guilty of violating the auto laws. Some of the suspensions are of cases pending in the courts.

Reckless driving in which fatal accidents occurred, and driving while under the influence of liquor, are the serious offenses.

While accidents increase and the "blacklist" grows, Commissioner Synan of the highway commission today pointed out that they have not kept pace with the steady growth of the auto industry. License No. 173,000 for pleasure cars has just been issued. Mr. Synan said there are 25,300 more cars on the road than ever before, and at least 45,000 more drivers.

The number of cars and vehicles for the first nine months of this year as compared with the entire year of 1918 is:

Pleasure	173,000	[illegible]
Trucks	[illegible]	[illegible]
Motorcycles	[illegible]	[illegible]

"The only reason that there aren't more cars on the road," said Mr. Synan, "is that the makers can't produce them fast enough."

J. C. Shea Post to Meet.

The J. C. Shea Post of the American Legion will meet Tuesday night in their headquarters, No. [illegible] Florence street, Mt. Hope. All ex-service men of the district are invited. Reports will be heard from the delegates to the State convention.

IRISH TENOR WINS NEW LAURELS

John O'Sullivan Gives Varied Program in Symphony Hall

John O'Sullivan, Irish tenor and member of the Paris and the Chicago grand opera companies, gained new and well-deserved laurels and added to his long and steadily increasing list of friends and enthusiasts at his latest concert in Symphony Hall.

In a program of excellently selected numbers, notable for the extensive scale of mode and interpretation which marked their rendering, the young Irish tenor more than at any time previously grew on the large audience who heard him.

CAPTIVATES AUDIENCE.

From grand opera to the lyrical and martial music of Ireland and the folk songs of Scotland is a big essay for any singer, but Mr. O'Sullivan seems to have surmounted well the big gap which lies between the simpler and more melodic songs and the highly dramatic selections which he used to gain the merited applause which all through the concert was his.

Opening with the narration from Lohengrin, Mr. O'Sullivan, ably accompanied by James Ecker, captivated his audience from the start. The Wagnerian rendering brought the singer two encores.

Again in the Cavatina from "Romeo and Juliet," Mr. O'Sullivan made an excellent impression in his Gounod selection. But his brilliant voice was heard with even greater ardor by a very composite audience in the simple love song by J. H. Densmore, "Longing, Dear, for You." Again, in the ringing martial lyric, "Draw the Sword, Scotland," by Ramsey, he made a big hit and a telling impression. The singer rose to greater heights of vocal perfection in Herbert's "When Shall I Again See Ireland," a selection which cannot be dissociated with his Boston concerts and which he sang last night at special request of several of his Boston admirers.

SINGS STIRRING TUNE.

The young Irish tenor with equal tonal beauty and fine phrasing gave Moore's "The Harp That Once Thro' Tara's Hall," "Cruiskeen Lawn," by Samuel Lover, the grandfather of Victor Herbert, and the traditional Celtic air, "Mo Chraobhin Cno," together with a number of other items rendered in response to encore calls. Among these were the stirring "Let Erin Remember the Days of Old," and another of Moore's, "Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded?"

Mr. O'Sullivan made an innovation in his concert by the inclusion of the 101st Regiment Band, with L. I. Massey, leader, instead of an individual instrumentalist. The band played the "William Tell" overture, "Dance of the Hours," from Giaconda; a medley of Irish airs and "Echoes from the Metropolitan Opera House."

Mr. O'Sullivan will not be heard again concert in Boston for six months, it was said, but many looked forward with eager anticipation to the singer's appearance in the Hub with the Chicago Opera Company, under the leadership of Signor Campanini.

Pastors to Discuss 5-Cent Church Fare With Elevated

Boston ministers at their respective meeting places throughout the city today appointed a representative committee to see the Elevated about the five-cent church ticket on Sundays, which has been advocated some time by the ministers.

Rev. Isaac Ward, of the First Presbyterian Church, is chairman of the committee, and will meet the trustees of the Elevated on Friday, October 31, when two ministers from every denomination—about sixteen in all—will discuss the advisability of issuing these tickets and what they mean to the churches.

Rev. W. W. Decker, of the Free Baptist Church, Warren street, and Rev. W. H. Feeda, of the Clarendon Street Baptist Church, compose the Baptist unit.

Rev. Isaac Ward of Boston, Rev. W. W. Iliffe of Brookline, and Rev. David Nicholson of South End, make up the Presbyterian unit. Other denominations will appoint their representatives this week.

$3. Guaranteed 20 Years Jeweled Adjusted

A chance to purchase a Wrist-Watch really cheap.

When the Armistice was signed the 11th of last November, we had hundreds of these watches in the process of manufacture and were selling them to soldiers like hot cakes at $15.00 each. They are strong, rugged, beautifully jeweled and adjusted time-pieces, made according to specifications for army use, and most anybody knows what that means—a lifetime time-piece. Now that the soldiers are all supplied we shall offer the balance of the stock (about five thousand) at $3.00 each. Every one is mounted on a real heavy leather Kitchener strap like cut. We will fill mail orders at the same price for three days. The sale over the counter will probably last not more than two days. Whether you buy here or by mail, every one will be sold with the distinct understanding that the money, every cent of it, will be refunded if a better looking or better wearing or any better quality of watch can be bought elsewhere for less than $15.00. It is an army watch. That's all you need to know. Our 20-year guarantee is packed in box with each watch. The price by mail will be the same ($3.00), in lots of one or one hundred.

READY RESPONSE IN ROOSEVELT FUND DRIVE

Checks, Money Orders and Currency Pour in for Memorial to Ex-President

The Roosevelt Memorial Fund drive was ushered in today by a flood of checks, money orders and currency, as yet uncounted by the headquarters clerks at No. 89 State street.

Along with the gifts came hundreds of letters attesting the enthusiastic response which the campaign is meeting and evincing the love and devotion with which the memory of Theodore Roosevelt is honored.

The drive, which will end on Roosevelt's birthday, October 27, will have as its object the following:

First, to improve the land that has been given at Oyster Bay for a Roosevelt memorial park.

Second, to erect a monumental memorial in Washington which will rank with the Washington monument and the Lincoln monument.

Third, the establishment of a Roosevelt society or foundation, to carry on Colonel Roosevelt's spirit of Americanism and perpetuate and keep alive the uncompromising patriotism of which he was so essentially the exponent.

Guy Murchie, No. 77 Franklin street, chairman of the Suffolk County committee, is being assisted by Colonel James H. Smythe, former militia inspector-general, who is heading the ward canvass committee; Major Richard Fuller, a returned service man, who has charge of fixed collection points; P. A. O'Connell, president of the E. D. Slattery Company, who has organized the rallies and speakers; W. H. McMasters, chairman of the publicity committee; Mrs. Clarence Edwards, chairman of the women's committee, and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, of the special committee.

More than 100 speakers are scheduled to speak, in all parts of the city—on the Common, in the schools and in the churches. Former Governor John L. Bates spoke this noon on the Common, while Lieutenant-Governor Channing H. Cox will speak there tomorrow.

Special exercises will be held in all the schools during the week, former Lieutenant-Governor Grafton Cushing being in charge of these events.

All local banks and trust companies have consented to accept subscriptions. Collection points will also be opened up in the larger stores.

1,000 MORE CARS OF FOOD FOR BOSTON

New Allotment for Army Store Contains Large Quantity of Canned Meats

More than 1,000 carloads of food have just been released at Washington for sale at the Army Supply Base, in the retail stores, at South Boston. Approximately 1,000 carloads have been delivered to date, which, Washington declares, is 50 per cent. of the surplus food allotted to this district.

The new allotment contains large quantities of canned meats, which, according to the Federal food inspector of Boston, "if packed under a fancy name would sell at greatly increased prices."

The Federal food inspector also states that the meat is of the best quality obtainable. It is doubtful whether any additional allotments of corn, peas, beans or jams will be included in this allotment.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. Barry, in charge of the mail order department, states that no sugar, raincoats or hot water bags are offered for sale in his department. The supply of blankets and corned beef in one-pound cans is getting short. Corned beef in other sizes is in stock in large quantities.

Colonel Barry asks customers who send in orders and receive only part of their order to wait a few days before taking action. A letter follows the part order, stating if there is a shortage, and enclosing refund, if due.

Colonel Barry paid a tribute today to Peter Green, superintendent of the Postal Department. Green's department has handled the bundles with efficiency since the beginning, he said, and Green had never allowed a bundle to remain in the postoffice over night.

Two thousand two hundred and forty mail orders were shipped on Saturday. The receipts for Saturday brought in $10,000, raising the total of the mail order department to $327,000. Fifty additional employes were taken on, making the total 550. The mail order department purchased $10,000 worth of stamps for shipment of goods.

In the cash and carry store Saturday $14,017.31 was received. It is announced that a 10 per cent. discount, by order of the Washington authorities, will be allowed on quantity sales to hospitals and charitable institutions. Captain John Gibbon, who was in charge of the Fall River branch, has been relieved, and will report back to the base. Captain F. W. Wickett will take Captain Gibbon's place.

Lexington Hunter Is First of Season to Be Injured

Oscar Sorensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Sorensen of No. 92 Woburn street, Lexington, was the first hunter to be injured in the season which began today. At about 3 o'clock he started out with two companions, E. G. DeVaux and George Philbrick, both of Lexington.

Stopping the automobile at Burlington he started to take out his gun. It went off, tearing a gaping wound in his right forearm. His companions rushed him to the office of Dr. Fred S. Piper of Lexington.

From there he went to the Waltham Hospital. He may not be able to use his arm again.

The opening of the season finds the farmers in Middlesex County in an unpleasant frame of mind as hunters are walking over their posted land.

GET $7,079,434 IN HARVARD DRIVE

Endowment Fund Nears Half-way Mark, with Boston Teams Leading

Steady gains were recorded today by the hundreds of Harvard men who are canvassing the country in behalf of the endowment fund of $15,250,000, and at noon the seven million dollar mark was passed, with every expectation that at least half of the desired total would be secured before the middle of the week.

The Boston solicitors continued to increase their margin over those in New York, and had secured a lead today of nearly three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The totals from the three sections were announced as follows:

Boston	$2,897,725
New York	2,559,681
Scattering	1,622,025
Total	$7,079,431

Among the larger subscriptions announced today were the following:

Frank Merriman, '71, $3,000; F. B. Land, '88, $3,000; Percy Lee Atherton, '93, $3,000; Merrill Griswold, '07, $1,500; D. Ayer, '11,100; Francis Henry Appleton, $691,000; Herman T. Baldwin, '91, $1,000; I. T. Burr, Jr., '06, $1,000; Robert S. Potter, '12, $1,000; Donald T. Hood, '14, $1,000.

SERVICE MEN AN HONEST LOT, SAYS WARE

Thousands of Checks Endorsed in Boston, and Only Five "Worthless"

The men who fought in the 26th Division, the Third Pioneer Infantry and the various other units that came back to the United States from France through the port of Boston were as honest as they were brave.

This is the outstanding fact in the report of Charles E. Ware, Jr., secretary of the Boston committee for the reception of returning soldiers, sailors and marines, made to Mayor Peters today:

"I estimate that an average of fifty checks a day have been indorsed by the secretary of this committee, and in all this period only five checks have come back as worthless," Mr. Ware states. "This, I think, speaks very highly for the honesty of the service men."

Over 70,000 men have made use of the facilities afforded by Liberty Hall on Boston Common since last December, Mr. Ware reports, and over 30,000 have signed the register. This has become a valued historical record which is now to be turned over to the Boston public library.

The newspapers of Boston are warmly praised for the great amount of space they devoted to the work of the committee and the army and navy and marine crops and the Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Jewish Welfare Board and War Camp Community are praised for their work in providing board and lodging for the men.

RED DIVISION IN PETROGRAD WIPED OUT

Forces Under Gen. Yudenitch Surround City; Report Big Battle Is Impending

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 20.—General Yudenitch's anti-Bolshevik forces have surrounded Petrograd and practically destroyed a Red division that was rushed from the interior to defend the city, according to a communique issued here today based upon official reports to the War Office.

Portions of the communique are contradictory. One part said that latest advices confirm the report that the Bolsheviks offered to surrender Petrograd if it were not bombarded. Another said that the Red garrison of the city were preparing to stand siege and to fight from house to house if necessary.

The text follows:

"Latest reports confirm that a Bolshevik deputation arrived at Gatchina and offered to surrender Petrograd, providing it was not bombarded.

"The Esthonians are approaching Oranienbaum and are also bombarding Pskov. The Bolsheviks have been driven from Kiev (capital of Ukrainia) and are now fighting in the suburbs.

"A Bashkir division that was rushed from the interior to defend Petrograd was defeated and practically destroyed at Krasnaya-Selo. The garrison is posting machine guns in houses on the principal streets of Petrograd. They have rushed up supplies of food and are preparing to stand siege."

A news agency dispatch from Copenhagen quoted the Reval correspondent of the Berlinske Tidende as saying in a dispatch:

"Tremendous explosions are occurring in Petrograd. The fall of the city is expected hourly."

ASSAULT ON PACKING PLANT WORKER CHARGED

Billie Warren, thirty-one, of Cambridge street, Cambridge, was arraigned in Somerville Court today, charged with assault and battery on Herman Neblett, while Neblett was on his way to work in one of the packing houses involved in the strike. Warren pleaded not guilty and was held in $100 for another hearing, October 24.

TO LIFT LIQUOR BAN AT WORD OF PALMER

President Will Act on Advice of Attorney-General, Says the White House

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Lifting of the wartime prohibition ban will rest with Attorney-General Palmer, it was stated at the White House today.

The President will lift the ban when he is advised by the Attorney-General that he has the power to do so, unless Congress should act first and repeal the law.

No proclamation of peace will be made until the peace treaty, ratified by the Senate, has been deposited with the secretariat of the Peace Commisssion at Paris, it was stated.

White House officials today were undecided whether they would lay the wartime prohibition enforcement act before the President during his illnss. The bill becomes effective Oct. 28 without the President's signature.

The question of the Austrian treaty arose today at the White House in connection with the lifting of the war-time prohibition ban. There was some doubt as to whether the Austrian treaty would have to be ratified, as well as the German treaty before a state of peace could be declared. There was a general impression that the Austrian treaty might raise a technical question, which would delay the lifting of the ban.

Congress may repeal the law, and it is evidently the hope in White House circles that this step will be taken. It is indicated that both the Attorney-General and the President were not disposed to hurry the action until they felt definitely certain of their right to do so.

ARMOURS LOSE APPEAL IN PAWTUCKET CASE

Washington, Oct. 20.—Armour & Co. lost their appeal before the Supreme Court of the United States to force the New Haven Railroad to continue the privilege of use of switch to their refrigerator plant at Pawtucket, R. I. The Supreme Court dismissed the application for certiorari for want of jurisdiction.

BRUISES 'MARKS OF AFFECTION,' IS DEFENCE

Jacobs, Sued for Divorce, Denies He Treated Wife Cruelly

Although his wife, suing him for a divorce, charged they were due to his "cosmic agressiveness," Mark Jacobs told Judge Hammond today that contusions and abrasions on her body were marks of his affection for her.

They were married last January, and parted company three weeks later, she meantime having returned to her job as cashier of a West street candy store. The wife, Sadie Alexander Jacobs, charges cruel and abusive treatment, and introduced in evidence photographs of her person showing bruises, which she charged had been inflicted by her husband.

Jacobs denied all the allegations. He spent several years in the army and was wounded in France. He charged that his wife's physician, Dr. Steel, had "framed him."

Jacobs denied that he had referred to an army revolver introduced in evidence, as "my baby" and "my protector."

Mrs. Jacobs said that her husband had a very affectionate disposition. In fact, she testified, he was "aggressively affectionate." They parted, she said, because of differences over a joint bank account. She said they had quarrelled in street cars.

He denied that they had ever quarrelled in public. She testified thah they had quarrelled in a Chinese restaurant and that they had signed an agreement to dissolve partnership. The next day he inserted in the papers a notice that he would not be responsible for her bills.

Fare Change Postponed.

The ten-cent fare scheduled to have gone into effect on the Middlesex & Boston street railway system today was postponed to November 1, owing to the fact that the Public Service Commission is considering the introduction of the zone system, which is expected to meet with considerable opposition.

SOCIALIST PROPAGANDA IN TRADE BOARD CHARGED

Washington, Oct. 20. — There is reason to believe that a number of the employes of the Federal Trade Commission have been and are now engaged in Socialist propaganda and in furthering the organization and growth of Socialistic organizations, it was asserted in a resolution introduced by Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana, in the Senate this afternoon. The resolution called for investigation by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, to inquire into the truth of these charges.

HOME-MADE BREW COSTS $75 FINE FOR ONE DRINK

John W. Pinkham, forty-two, of Union Park street, Boston, paid a fine of $75 in the Waltham court today as a result of dallying with a home-made brew, the gift of a friend. Pinkham said he was driving his automobile through Watertown when he decided to sample the contents of a pint bottle. He took one drink, he declared, and his machine leaped across the street and crashed into an electric car. Patrolman Devaney, who arrested Chadwick on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, produced the bottle. It was labelled "Self Starter."

WILSON AND AHEARN MEET IN 12-ROUND BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

It will be another case of a master boxer against a two-handed fighter when Young (Jake) Ahearn and Johnny Wilson clash in a twelve-round bout at Mechanics Building tonight under the direction of the Fenway A. A.

Ahearn is the representative of boxing skill and speed. Wilson will try and prove that the haymaker is still king.

Jack Dempsey showed what a punch could do when he battered Jess Willard into submission at Toledo. Dempsey was pitted against a man who outweighed him by forty pounds and who was eight inches taller. But yet he won; his victory was so decisive that Willard lost what prestige he was able to secure during his reign as champion.

At Mechanics Building tonight Wilson, the fighter, will not be pitted against a bigger man than himself. Instead, he will have all the natural advantages in his favor, which are supposed to give an athlete the edge on his opponent.

WEIGHTS OF BOXERS.

Wilson will scale between 165 and 170 pounds, while Ahearn will be at 155 pounds.

And yet those men who are supposed to be able to pick winners in boxing contests say Ahearn will win. They claim the boxer will beat the fighter. They don't go so far as to state it will be a repetition of what happened when Dundee met Kloby at Lawrence, but they are of the opinion Ahearn will prove too fast and elusive for the Charlestown man. It is their contention that Jake's left hand will keep bobbing against Wilson's jaw until the pride of the Bunker Hill section thinks he is opposed to a machine gun.

Wilson's followers think otherwise. They are confident Johnny will stop his South Boston rival. Let Wilson score with one solid left hand smash to the body and the contest will be over, declare Wilson's admirers.

A GOOD PUNCHER.

There is no denying Wilson can punch. Any time he scores with his left, his opponent usually has a hard task remaining on his feet.

For three weeks Johnny has been training at Bedford. And he now says he is ready.

"I'll stop Ahearn," declared Johnny today. "Jake can't stand up under body punishment, and I'll give him all these kind of blows he cares for this p. m."

"Wilson is a dub and doesn't know how to box," said Ahearn. "I will left-hand him to death."

So there you are. Now write your own ticket.

The contest has aroused intense interest among the fans. A capacity house is sure to be on hand to witness the festivities. The directors of the Fenway A. A. have been busy at their office, Room 412, No. 27 School street, making reservations for the fans.

PLENTY OF SEATS.

As there are plenty of seats in Mechanics Building, those fans who were unable to get accommodations at the last Ahearn-Wilson bout will be able to witness the mill.

It is the third tussle between these two men. Their first bout was staged in Lawrence and was a draw. In their second frolic, Wilson was awarded the honors on a knockout in the sixth frame despite the fact he had landed two foul blows.

Jack Noyes of the South End and Leo O'Brien of South Boston will meet in an eight-round bout. There will be another eight-round contest between Frank Tillo, North End lightweight, and Tommy Durbey of Gloucester. Flash Rogers of the North End and Johnny Marto of Chelsea will clash in a six-round event.

FORE RIVER CLUB HOLDS BOXING CARD

Quincy boxing fans will attend the bouts at the Fore River Club tonight to size up their favorites. The club, through its president, C. T. Williamson, has started a stable of its own and many well-known boxers will represent the club this Winter.

They will run their first show tonight when Joe Pangreze of the club will mix it with young Brusso of Revere. Hughey Ramsay will box Harry Lowing of Charlestown.

In a special bout Johnny Best, champion bantamweight of Scotland, will meet Johnny Hepburn, a hard-hitting country man of his. A good deal of interest surrounds this bout as each has heavy backers in Quincy. This should be a swell fight.

Besides these there will be three other bouts. The club will run shows every two weeks through the Winter.

DOYLE AND CARNEY IN COMMERCIAL A. C. GO

Paul Doyle of New York and Billy Carney, New Bedford welterweight, will furnish the thrills in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Commercial A. C. Friday night. Johnny Sullivan, South Boston lightweight, and Young Vierra of New Bedford will clash in the semi-final of ten rounds.

HARVARD CROSS-COUNTRY SEASON OPENS SATURDAY

Harvard's cross-country team will open its season Saturday afternoon at Syracuse, N. Y., where the Crimson will be one of eight colleges participating in a four-mile race under the auspices of Syracuse University. Harvard's opponents will include Princeton and Cornell.

Successor to Brady Not Yet Chosen at Oakley

Owing to the efforts of F. E. Fairbanks, head of the grounds committee, and Greenkeeper Joseph Sheridan, the grounds at the Oakley Country Club have been marvelously green and as smooth as a billiard cloth. For the first time in several years the club house will remain open during the Winter and the members are looking forward with anticipation to the resumption of tobogganing, skeeing, hockey, skating and all other Winter sports. The ladies have been exceptionally enthusiastic players this year and have been in attendance every day in the week.

Michael J. Brady, the club professional, is to take the place of Walter Hagen at Oakland Hill, Detroit, on April 1. During January, February and March he will take on a new course on the Pacific Coast. As yet the new professional for Oakley has not been chosen.

MINOR SPORTS GET BIG PLAY AT YALE

New Haven, Oct. 20. — Unusually keen interest in football at Yale this season has not caused a diminishing of interest in Fall sports, which has been entered into with more spirit than ever before. There are sixteen crews on the water every day, and baseball and track, the other major sports besides football, have record squads of exceptional quality.

Soccer has drawn a sizeable squad, tennis candidates includes every one of the team of last season, and basketball men will not be called out for a month yet. Lacrosse, another minor sport usually taken up in the Fall, has died out, but may be revived in the Spring.

SECRET PRACTICE FOR YALE GAME AT TUFTS

Coach Whelan begins preparing his Tufts charges for the game with Yale Saturday behind closed gates today. All practice at the Medford College is to be secret from now on.

In the Norwich game Tufts showed lack of team play, especially as regards the rushline, where there seemed to be too much individuality to produce results. From now on Whelan will watch the practice with an eagle eye and anybody who is not fighting every minute will be benched.

LAFAYETTE RUNNERS ENTER NEW YORK MEET

Easton, Pa., Oct. 20.—Coach Harold A. Bruce will enter a strong cross-country team from Lafayette College in the national junior A. A. U. championship run in Van Cortland Park on Saturday, November 8. The annual Middle States Intercollegiate cross-country championship originally had been scheduled to be run here on November 8, but the desire to enter the national A. A. U. event caused the collegiate run to be switched to November 15.

YALE REFUSES TO ABANDON SCOUT WORK

New Haven, Oct. 20.—Although Yale has refused to both abandon secret practice and to give up attending games played by its rival teams in the hope of securing information of the formations employed, the football management has announced that there would be no scouting whatever for purposes of attempting to secure private information of the football doings at other universities.

No efforts have been made by other universities to secure a line on the Yale practice or the development of the team, but the Yale football officials believe that they have a right to send a representative of their coaching staff to attend any other games which may be played by teams who will later meet Yale. Yale will make no change in this respect.

Dr. Billy Bull has been the coach usually selected for this purpose, and he will probably be sent to the scheduled games of Yale's rivals all the season. He has been given charge of the scrub squad, which includes three or four elevens that are organized with a code of signals different from the varsity and with formations which are modeled after those of Yale's rival teams.

In this way the varsity is able to oppose regularly an eleven which is as different in playing tactics from their own as if it were another college team.

At the annual meeting of the National College Association in New York city last December it was voted to urge all universities to abandon secret practice and to give up the plan of scouting for purposes of securing advance information regarding the formations used by rival teams. Yale will open the gates every day for a part of its practice, but will maintain secret drill throughout the year. Till the past week secret practice was maintained during the entire afternoon.

Yale's policy, as finally announced for this Fall, is practically the same as that in every football season the past decade, except that an official statment has been made that no attempt will be made to secure secret information of the football campaign from other universities.

ROPER HAS BIG JOB ON HANDS AT PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 20.—Although Princeton showed great improvement in football form in its victory over Rochester Saturday, compared with its work against Lafayette a week ago, it is apparent that Coach Roper and his assistants have still a big job on their hands if they are o whip their charges into shape to make any kind of a showing in the ensuing four games of the Tigers' schedule, namely, Colgate, West Virginia, Harvard and Yale.

The one-sided victory of the Orange and Black over the Rochester eleven was due more to the extreme weakness of the latter team than to any particular show of strength on Princeton's part.

The Orange and Black backfield alone seems to be up to the mark. Even considering the lightness of the Rochester forwards, the hammer-like plunging of Garrity, one of the Tiger halfbacks, was ranked with the best ever witnessed in Palmer Stadium.

Although several of the Orange and Black regulars were removed from the gridiron following minor injuries, Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick today announced that this was done merely as a precautionary measure and that the men came through in fine shape.

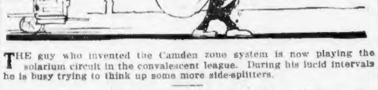
THE ZONE SYSTEM.

THE zone trolley system has been as successful as a snappy drummer trying to sell chinaware in an earthquake. It was tried in Jersey City and found guilty. It was tried in Camden and the merry villagers knocked the scheme sour.

THE idea of the zone system is to divide the city into circles like a target. The traction company shoots at the target and swats the public right on the nose. Every miss is a hit.

THE day's receipts for the first zone atrocity in Camden were unusually large, being composed equally of nickels and cobble rocks. The citizens of Walt Whitman's old town changed the zone system into the stone system. A lot of quaint objects flew through the windows that the conductors were unable to ring up on the registers.



I Hope they give me credit for these rocks

THE guy who invented the Camden zone system is now playing the solarium circuit in the convalescent league. During his lucid intervals he is busy trying to think up some more side-splitters.

WE got along with only three zones for a long while until the traction cuckoos tried to improve on geography. Doc Cook was the first baby to think that three zones weren't enough, so he discovered another tropical zone near the North Pole where the blond Eskimos played philopena for gumdrops and canaries roared in the hot sun. Later events indicated that the Doc had been in the hot sun himself.

THE zone system has been successful in the parcel post industry for transferring eggs and other durable merchandise where a few years more or less makes no difference in the taste. But you can't compare the public with eggs, as eggs have a market value. You've also got to show some care in packing 'em.

THE zone bunk changes the dope. In the old days your nickel would go as far as the car. Now the car only goes as far as your jitney. The conductor asks your destination and the amount of your nickel roll. If you have six jits, the trip is divided into six zones. If you have eleven nickels, it's eleven zones. This is called putting the nick in nickel. This system was very successful in Jersey, where the Lost and Found Department still has four tons of rocks, broken bottles and brickbats that haven't been called for. Some absent-minded Persian also left a brand new Chinese shillelah in the car.

I GAVE UP SMOKING WHEN I GOT THIS JOB.

ANOTHER rank injustice is involved in the increased amount of jitneys handled. It might benefit the conductors, but what good does it do the motorman? In order to encourage sharpshooting among the conductors, the company announces that it will give 'em a good cigar every time they ring the bell. Some of the men don't smoke.

ALTHOUGH the public is sorer than a porcupine with ingrown quills, there is no doubt that we will soon be leaping from zone to zone like an ant on a hot rock. The company is determined to collect a four-alarm fare for a one-alarm zone. They say that the world is safe for democracy, but you notice that the farmers still put padlocks on their henhouse doors.

HARVARD BACKS PUT OUT OF RUNNING

Harvard will be without the services of Eddie Casey, 50 per cent. of its offensive strength in the backfield, and Ralph Horween, the best punter and drop kicker on the eleven, in its contest with the University of Virginia Saturday. Casey lamed his left leg just below the hip and Horween dislocated his collarbone during the Brown game. Dr. Nichols holds out the hope that the former will be back in shape in two weeks, but Coach Fisher will probably not allow his star halfback to scrimmage again until the Princeton contest. Horween will be ready for work in three weeks, but will probably have to be well braced to prevent his throwing the injured member out of shape again.

Joe Ryan, left end, who played a hard, consistent game Saturday, had his ankle wrenched in a flash around the wing, but will be ready to play Saturday, it is believed, and the remainder of the men who started against the Bruins came through unharmed.

BURNHAM IMPROVING.

Some consolation is afforded Harvard's rooters by the fact that Stan Burnham's injured ankle is now better, and he will be available for the Virginia game. Burnham has the reputation of being the best defensive back on the Harvard team, and his reappearance should boost up the backfield in this respect considerably.

Eddie Casey is Harvard's number three back, which denotes primarily that he is the running halfback of the eleven and depended on for wide sweeping gains around the wings. Dick Humphrey, who played the number one position Saturday, primarily assigned to the defensive man, will probably be switched to the position vacated by Casey, while Arnold Horween may play the number two position in place of his brother. This will give Coach Wigglesworth an opportunity to use Burnham or Hamilton defensively.

Phil Philbin's injured neck is still slow to respond to treatment and he will not be played against Virginia. Havemeyer, who has played the position in the last two games, is a steady passer and fairly strong on the defence. When Philbin returns a batle royal will be the result, for the material on the team is so evenly matched that unless a performer is exceptionally brilliant at his position, injury is likely to give an opposing player an opportunity to clinch the regular job.

FISHER SATISFIED.

Coach Fisher was not displeased with the showing of the team Saturday. While admitting that Harvard should have had more points, the Crimson's coach expressed himself as satisfied, although of course there was much in the game that he could not approve of.

One glaring fault of the Crimson was its utter lack of defense for the criss-cross attack which Brown sprung in the second half. The visitors' fast backs, especially the brilliant young freshman, Fox, completely drew the opposing defense out of position on these shifty formations, and Brown got four of its five first downs this way. Harvard kept the ball from the Bruins as much as possible during the game, especially by the long distance kicking, and this did not allow the visiting eleven to get its attack moving ahead in any consecutiveness.

PENALTIES COSTLY.

Penalties again scored heavily against the Harvard eleven, and Casey was brought back from Brown's 3-yard line in one 20-yard run because Steele, one of the ends, was not on the line of play. Several minor penalties also were meted out. Fumbling also hurt the Harvard attack somewhat, although the ball did not go to the enemy, being recovered by either the man carrying it, or a team mate.

The interference still will stand a lot of drilling. The successful runs of Casey and Humphrey in Saturday's game were made more because of the natural ability of these men, than the assistance given them.

Ryan and Steele played stellar football, both being used extensively on forward passes and end around plays.

COLLEGE GRIDIRON CONTESTS MARKED BY TWO BIG UPSETS

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Protruding bulkily in the forefront of the historical data one scans in retrospection of the gridiron events of last Saturday, stand two gigantic upsets.

They are Yale's defeat by Frank Cavanaugh's Boston College eleven and the occurrence in the Syracuse stadium, where Buck O'Neil threw eleven Oranges at Glen Warner's hitherto vicious Panthers and sent them whimpering home to their Pittsburgh lair.

Not in many years has a single day of college football produced two more unlooked-for happenings than those which transpired in the Yale Bowl and the Syracuse Stadium. For, while both the victors were known to have exceptionally good teams, the aggregations which met defeat were generally believed to be their superiors in virtually every department of play.

That huge hunks of long green government currency did not swap owners on the outcome of each of those games was entirely due to the cageyness of the respective supporters of Boston College and Syracuse, for before the game Yale and Pittsburgh rooters were employing everything from tearful entreaties to threats of bodily harm in their efforts to inveigle Boston or Syracuse men to lay money at 3 to 1 odds. So vapor-like did the latter consider their chances that they asked odds in wagering that Boston or Syracuse would so much as score a point.

NO OTHER UPSETS.

Aside from this pair of upsets, the football season rolled merrily along the expected course, although here and there came minor happenings which led to the altering of preconceived opinions.

Harvard's failure to equal Colgate's showing against a Brown team that was much weaker than when it opposed Bankhart's eleven causes the Crimson supporters to speculate on whether their team has not lost a slight edge in the race for the Eastern college title.

"Cutey" Spears' Dartmouth aggregation accomplished somewhat more than was expected when one analyzes the playing of the game with Penn State. True, the Bezdek Bad Men scored two touchdowns on the Green, but both came suitably garnished on a platter carried by Dame Fortune. The impressive phase of that game came in the fact that, while twice the Big Greenings were in arrears, they battled inspiringly onward, scoring three touchdowns and a well-earned victory.

LITTLE LINE ON TIGERS.

Laurie Bankhart's Colgate array, which with Harvard, Dartmouth Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Princeton, make up the present leading Eastern sextet, treated Coach Rush's Cornellians to an inverted success such as often has been the lot of Rush-coached teams. Pennsylvania found the opposition easier than was expected in its game with Swarthmore. Little could be gained in the shape of new facts on the Princeton team as its makeshift opponent, Rochester, is scarcely known to the fotball world. Many believed Tufts would make a much better showing against Norwich, while the defeat of Springfield by Holy Cross and Williams' lop-sided win over Columbia bordered on the unexpected.

However, New England's conversation on college football this week will centre largely upon the Yale-Boston College game, and many coaches who have thus far neglected to do so, particularly those of the Eli staff, will invest today in Frank Cavanaugh's book on Inside Football, to learn how he did it.

CLAIMING ROUGHNESS.

Already they are starting a story at New Haven which accuses the Boston team of rough play, and this, in the face of the fact that one Yale man and no Boston College men were sent from the field for slugging. This story only emphasizes the proneness of over enthusiastic big team supporters to explain away a victory or an excellent showing made by a small team, by introducing a happening in the contest that did not transpire or grossly enlarging minor incidents that did.

Before accepting such yarns consideration should be given two or three facts having to do with the playing of games against big college elevens.

Football officials, in the main, endeavor to be fair to both elevens. There have been instances where they seem to have been unwittingly influenced to rule contrary to the best judgment of close students of the sport. A coach who spent a large portion of the game cupping his hands to his mouth and ordering officials to "watch that roughing," "watch that piling-up," had such an effect upon the officials of a game in which Dartmouth was the alleged offender a few years ago, while similar circumstances in a Penn State contest led one of the officials to penalize Penn State fifteen yards for holding and then, upon being questioned as to who was the offender, pointed to the halfback who carried the ball over the goal line on the play. But such incidents are few.

OFFICIALS ARE FAIR.

Usually football officials like to officiate. Then there is the money consideration. The larger colleges and universities accord officials larger fees than smaller institutions are able to pay. This is particularly true in the crucial contests in which the big elevens engage. Quite naturally, from that standpoint, as well as for the satisfaction from being recognized as a big game official, there is a desire among those who handle football games to work at their very best when officiating in a game in which one of the larger institutions is represented, and the tendency is to protect the big team as well as the small one rather than to penalize the big team without cause.

In Saturday's Yale game, Yale was penalized half the distance to the goal line, and its best lineman was ordered out of the game for slugging. No such penalty was given the Boston eleven. Consequently the grounds for the New Haven-born story of rough play by Boston College would appear very unreliable.

If hard playing were the accusation, it would more truly agree with the facts. Boston College men played football for all there was in it. Every man charged at the heavier Blue team as if he meant it, and it was as the result of this brand of football that Yale was held to its single field goal and Jimmy Fitzpatrick permitted to take his place in football's hall of fame by his truly remarkable goal from the 47-yard line.

MANY YALE FAULTS.

There were many faults and shortcomings with the Yale team as it played Saturday. Some were due to circumstances over which there was no control; others were of a correctable nature, so that the defeat by Boston College should not be taken as eliminating Yale from making a remarkable record in the remaining weeks of the season.

Three of the best of Eli backs, the Yale captain and centre and a man they claim is their best end, were unable to get into the contest owing to injuries; and, in one of the missing backs, Yale lost a punter who would have cut down considerable of Boston's advantage in that department of the play. That constituted the uncontrollable circumstances. The chief of the controllable ones was the entire absence of united play on the part of the Yale team. Next in rank was the lack of any power or fight in the charging of its line. Walker's failure to obey the rules cost his team 40 yards at a most telling point in the game and sent him out of the game when his genuine ability was much needed, while offside play by Yale cost the Blue an almost sure touchdown. The weird passing of Acosta played such an important part in the game's outcome that it needs no further mention. All contributed to Yale's downfall.

The Colgate-Princeton game, at which Princeton will lead the list of major attractions this week so far as Eastern interest is concerned, while the Michigan-Ohio State clash will be the chief entertainer for Western enthusiasts.

SUNDAY GOLFERS OUT IN FORCE ON THE LINKS

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Just as Massachusetts golfers were bemoaning the end of the season because the last open tournament was played at Brae-Burn Friday and Saturday, along came one of the best golfing days of the year Sunday to brighten their spirits.

As the Supreme Court will not get around to finding a decision on the standing of golf as a public pastime on Sunday until later in the season, there was nothing to prevent the golfers from enjoying the clear Fall weather, and full quotas were out at all clubs.

The courses are in excellent condition this Fall. There has been such a large amount of rainfall that no burned spots appear, and if there is anything trying to the average golfer it is attempting to make a patch shot stay on a burned up patch of earth.

The Massachusetts Golf Association conducted thirty eight open tournaments during the year at which the members had the opportunity of playing over thirty-one courses, and for which would have amounted to a truck load of silverware if the prizes had been gathered in one place.

LEADERS DO WELL.

That small group of regulars, the players who have been topping the field in Massachusetts golf for a number of years, had another excellent season and won most of the honors, but [illegible] of the more than 3200 players who started in the open tournaments have no complaint. They found the courses in excellent condition everywhere and enjoyed their rounds as much as the winners.

Francis Ouimet had no difficulty in retaining his position at the head of the list. He regained his title as amateur champion of the State, finished first in four open tournaments, smashed a number of course records and beat [illegible] in a second round [illegible] in the national amateur championship.

A few Massachusetts golfers were fortunate enough to be present at Oakmont [illegible] to attest that this match was the feature of the season from a Boston [illegible] post, if not from Chicago's viewpoint.

GUILFORD MAINTAINS PLACE.

Jesse Guilford, by winning the State open championship at Worcester as well as three of the open tournaments of the State Association, maintained his position near the top. [illegible] golfers who won more than one tournament were Fred T. Wright Jr., who beat everybody in the Press Club tournament and was the low gross scorer in a [illegible] of other meets; Parker Schofield, who made a strong finish; Larry Paton, who always can be counted upon to win a few, and W. C. Chick, who opened the tournament season with a win at Lexington, April 19, and scored again in the match play tournament at Essex.

It is perfectly proper that there should not be an equitable distribution of gross prizes. No golfer in Massachusetts would ever complain if the same man went out and captured every gross prize in sight. It would be freely admitted that such a player was entitled to all he won. But prizes taken by the aid of handicap is another matter altogether and a glance over the net winners for the season shows that Tom Horan, State handicapper, does not intend to let any one or two players outclass all the rest of us.

SNELLING FIRST TWICE.

The handicap prizes were won by a large number of players. H. B. W. Snelling of Concord appears to be the only golfer who got away with two firsts, and one of these was a tie with another. Snelling had an especially good card September [illegible] and won the [illegible] at Albemarle with an 80 13-67 and [illegible] with G. Henderson of Wes[illegible] at Wellesley, where he scored [illegible].

Scores show that it required better than [illegible] to win the handicap prizes [illegible] twice, at Merrimac Valley and Ould Newbury, was the gross prize taken by a player who failed to break eighty. The failure at Ould Newbury was a big disappointment as the club would have presented $100 in silverware to a golfer who scored under eighty. Fred Wright and R. M. Purves had 80's. The offer will be repeated next year.

Woodland won first club honors without a struggle. First Ouimet won the amateur at Winchester, then his former caddy, Eddie Lowery, won the junior title at the Country Club, and to make it complete, Jesse Guilford went to Worcester and took first in the State open championship.

STATE TEAM'S RECORD.

The State team defeated Rhode Island and Connecticut but lost to Pennsylvania in the Lesley cup matches at the National golf links. Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford did not play in the Lesley cup matches.

Ouimet and F. C. Newton were the Massachusetts men to get into the match play in the national amateur championship at Oakmont.

Private club golfers certainly are enjoying themselves this season, but Boston's public links golfers have been forced to sit on the sidelines and wait for the city to reconstruct the links at Franklin Park.

BOSTON EASILY FIRST.

Boston is easily the leading golfing city in America in the number of excellent courses and in the quality of the game of the average club member. There are more players in the district who can score under 90 than in any other section.

Yet with all the wealth of private courses the city is far behind other municipalities in public golf, and for the past two years has been completely [illegible]. A few of the Franklin Park regulars who formerly played at Franklin Park have joined private clubs, but the others have been waiting for happier days.

Public links golf is on the go in the United States and Boston will undoubtedly catch up in time. Just at present St. Louis has a wide lead over all cities in the reputation made by its public links golfers. Three of them qualified for the national amateur championship at Oakmont this year, and they were the only public links golfers to so do.

PUBLIC COURSES BIG AID.

Richard Bockencamp and James Manion of the Forest Park public links in St. Louis have demonstrated more than once that good golfers can be developed over public courses. Public golf courses are being established in larger numbers each year. Worcester is the only Massachusetts city to have one.

This week is not without its opportunities for golf competition. There will be an open mixed foursome Tuesday at Albemarle and the same sort of an event at Winchester the following day. On Thursday George Wright will be host at Wollaston for the annual old golfers party.

BABB AND MERRILL STAUNCH BELLVUE MEN

Edward E. Babb, who is familiar to every sport lover and a fixture at the B. A. A. events, with "Giff" Merrill, are two of the original members of the Bellevue Golf Club who have stuck to the club at all times. They have watched the club advance to its present status with the largest waiting list in proportion to its membership of any New England club. Both are regular players in the club tournaments and are among the last to quit playing after the season ends.

JUDGE BRUCE BECOMING ENTHUSIASTIC GOLFER

Judge Charles M. Bruce of the Malden District Court is one of the enthusiastic players at the Bellevue links. The judge is an expert at hunting, fishing and yachting and bids fair to enter the expert class among the golfers, having already won a prize in a Bellevue tournament when the food trophies were up.

ARLMONT CLUB IS TO HOLD TOURNEY

A best selected nine holes handicap medal event is listed for next Saturday afternoon at the Arlmont Golf Club, Arlington Heights. The event will bring the players' season to an official close, but tournaments are likely at the club during the Saturday afternoons in November if the weather holds favorable.

The handicap vs. Bogey tournament planned for last Saturday was not played as many of the members were out of town, several taking part in the two days' open tournament which ended Saturday at the Brae-Burn Country Club in Newton. G. M. Mitchell was the only Arlmont man to turn in a card. His score was [illegible] 3 82.

[illegible] Quimby lost the season's trophy, being defeated by G. M. Mitchell in the final round at the 19th hole.

COMMONWEALTH CLUB PLANS WINTER SPORTS

The Commonwealth Country Club are well along in their plans for Winter's events. The Halloween party on October [illegible] is to be a gala night. Features, fortune telling, bobbing for apples and costumed impersonations of fact and fiction characters are but a few of the numerous enjoyments scheduled for that evening. The first of a series of progressive bridge parties to be given on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, was held on October [illegible], and a cordial invitation has been tendered to all members and their friends to attend.

The usual club dinner dance was held on Tuesday evening with an attendance of about 12[illegible]. Mrs. H. Gutterson of Brighton [illegible] hostess for parties at [illegible] S. W. Brick[illegible], Newton, Charles S. Norris and F. W. [illegible] of Brookline [illegible] teen and twelve guests [illegible].

The winners of the [illegible] played on Friday were [illegible] Miss Johnston of Brae Burn [illegible] and Mrs. E. C. Fletcher and [illegible] Ball of Oakley best gross.

DULL DAYS AND GRAY AT WOODLAND GOLF CLUB

Woodland has been [illegible] the past week owing to [illegible] G. M. Lary's [illegible] to Brae Burn [illegible] and although [illegible] for the greater part of the season [illegible] certainly [illegible] going strong [illegible] members feel gratified at his success. He also has won one or two of the Woodland tournaments.

The professional, Charles M. Burgess, is planning a visit to Scotland with his family about the middle of December, remaining there until early Spring.

TO INSTALL NINE-HOLE COURSE AT BRAE-BURN

The Brae-Burn Country Club [illegible] start a [illegible] nine-hole course [illegible] for the benefit of [illegible] who do not desire to [illegible] present [illegible] rapidly growing [illegible] members. No[illegible] 130 [illegible] members.

Starting November 1 a series of five dinner dances will be held each Saturday evening. If they prove to be as successful as is now expected they will be continued as another of the club's diversions.

SKATING AND HOCKEY AT WELLESLEY CLUB

Golfing for the season at Wellesley is pretty well over, ending [illegible] competition Saturday between H. Furber and C. G. Clark for the club championship. An occasional [illegible] and skating and hockey on the flooded tennis courts comprise the plans for Winter pastimes.

OPEN MIXED FOURSOME ON CARD AT ALBEMARLE

Although club [illegible] at Albemarle are pretty well over for the season, the links still have an exceptionally large daily attendance. An open mixed foursome is scheduled for October 28, and the final match will be a four-ball medal play on Thanksgiving Day.

Golf Ideal Game for Women, Says Hagen

By WALTER HAGEN,
Open Golf Champion.

Women have a place in golf as well as men. The [illegible] of this royal and ancient pastime is not all centred in the playing of the sterner sex. It is possible for the woman player to get as much real enjoyment out of the game as a man, and as far as the best women players are concerned, they are not a great way behind the best men players. It has been figured out that the pro can give the expert woman player [illegible] strokes in a round. This was tried in England some years ago and the odds seemed to be about right, although [illegible] in that case Miss Cecil Leach was matched against H. H. Hilton [illegible] England [illegible]. It was tried later in this country when Mrs. W. A. [illegible] played against Jerry Travers, and again [illegible] woman player. Mrs. Gavin tried it against several pros, but did not have as much success as she had against Travers, although she beat two of them.

The recent golf played at Shawnee in the women's championship opened the eyes of the country to the possibility of the woman player. Such scores as were made in this tournament were a revelation and [illegible] not be despised by men players. Miss Stirling proved herself a real champion when she annexed the title for the second time, and her career [illegible] is only just beginning.

GAME WELL MATURED.

She cannot be over twenty, yet her golf game is well matured [illegible] due to the fact that she began when very young. Her [illegible] than that of most women golfers and shows that she has learned [illegible] from the foundation up. She began studying under Stewart Maiden, who was responsible for bringing out Bobby Jones, and her style [illegible] all that could be desired for either man or woman. I was surprised the first time that I saw Miss Stirling swing a golf club. Men golfers [illegible] take a very valuable lesson from watching her play. The first valuable hint that they would pick up is the very important fact that the size of the player makes little difference. Miss Stirling is a little mite but [illegible] from the tee and plays an iron with considerable [illegible].

DID YOU EVER SEE SUCH A SHOT

Big women golfers like big men [illegible] [illegible]

THINKS A SHOT AHEAD.

In a big tournament [illegible] play short if there is any possible chance of getting over with a [illegible]. Safe and sure should always be the first thing to consider, but unfortunately there is always more applause waiting for the player who takes a chance and brings off the shot successfully than there is for the player that plays short and reaches the green safely with the next shot. Too few figure out the next shot. Thinking one shot ahead is always a good plan for any golfer.

No one likes to be cowardly and play short of a trap when a good shot will put one over, but there are cases like the one described above where it might be permissible. As golf courses are mostly [illegible] for the star players [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] to wager on her chances [illegible]. Her [illegible] usually straight and [illegible] asset [illegible] player but it means more to the George [illegible] because she [illegible] wonderful control over her brassie and [illegible] I regard her a better iron club player than most men. Her [illegible] to look at, and good style usually brings about the best results, provided one has the necessary amount of nerve to go with it.

PLAYS IRON LIKE PRO.

Miss Stirling plays an iron with much the same snap that a pro puts into the shot. Usually she [illegible] a little turf, but not enough to retard the shot in any way. [illegible] with the iron is sometimes a dangerous proceeding and unless the [illegible] strong hands the club head will not get through properly. It is a great weakness of the woman player to fall short of the mark, that [illegible] the shot. This is caused sometimes by misjudging the distance, but more often by using the wrong club. There is usually just as much space on the other side of the pin as there is on the near side, and one can come back to the hole with as much ease as to play up to it.

ANECDOTES OF THE FAMOUS

In the course of one of his lecture tours Mark Twain arrived at a small town and went to a barber's shop to be shaved. "You are a stranger?" asked the barber. "Yes," Mark replied, "this is the first time I've been here." "You chose a good time to come," the barber went on; "Mark Twain is going to read and lecture tonight. You'll go, I suppose?" "Oh, I guess so!" "Have you bought your ticket?" "Not yet." "But everything is sold out; you'll have to stand." "How very annoying!" Mark Twain said, with a sigh. "I never saw such luck! I always have to stand when that fellow lectures!"

A Pertinent Query

A lady orator, after delivering a political address, concluded by saying: "And now is there any one who has any questions to ask? I shall be very glad to answer questions to the best of my ability." A woman rose in the back of the hall. "Well?" said the orator, with a smile. "Would you please tell me," said the woman eagerly, "where you got your hats?"

Hobson's Choice

Two little girls were coming home from school when one began to tease the other. "I don't care," said Mabla. "You are only an adopted child. Your father and mother are not really yours!" "I don't care either," said Grace. "My papa and mamma picked me out. Yours had to take you just as you came."

"I DECIDED to come today. I always do whatever I decide," she explained simply. "And when I got to the station I phoned Lane's office and they told me he'd gone up-State. But I knew you had an apartment in the building so I came here knowing, of course, that you and your husband would look out for me. My maid's upstairs unpacking. Lane took our place furnished, you know."

"I didn't know," I said, wondering if this were a pretty spoiled child, or a sophisticated, selfish woman.

"Well, now you know that I'm a perfectly trustworthy person, do let me have that gorgeous brocade in my own [illegible] It's so lovely! What is it? A negligee? Do you wear it often?"

"I've never worn it," I said, giving it over to the hands held out to clutch it.

As she took the robe my eyes focussed upon her hands. They were dead white and they moved slowly and lingeringly. Not all Valerie Cosby's beauty could ever make me forget her hands—that I knew at once. I hoped I'd never have to touch them. And yet I knew that their whiteness and the pinkness of the shining nails that tipped the long, full, slightly curved fingers might appeal to some persons.

Suddenly, without a word of explanation or apology, Valerie Cosby slipped out of her satins and chiffons, stood revealed for a moment in a flimsy undergarment of blue chiffon and lace and rosebuds, and then slid into the clinging sheath of the blue and green robe. Stretched stark against her body, the peacock's eye pattern revealed itself again mistily.

"Where's a mirror? I must see!" she laughed. "Oh, yes; the bedroom, of course."

Without a by-your-leave, she glided across my living room and disappeared beyond the doorway—the blue robe making her look like a magnificent reincarnation of some queen of old Egypt. Idly across my mind fluttered the recollection that Tom Mason had said I would look like a lady of Florence.

Then Mrs. Cosby came back, her eyes glittering, her fruity lips pouting more than ever. She lifted her arms slowly and began unfastening the robe.

Half-thoughts wrote themselves on my mind and erased themselves so others might take their place. The dinner-dance Saturday night—this was just the costume. I had expected to leave it behind in the old apartment—Jim had brought it. Mrs. Cosby adored it—Jim had told me to be decent for once in my life about the ball—Cosby meant money to him. I'd always wanted to get rid of the robe—Mrs. Cosby adored it. Then the memory of Jim's efforts to force friendship on me. And distaste. At last pained and hurt at Jim for bringing the robe in spite of all he knew.

Mrs. Cosby was back in her chiffons now, and handing the lustrous mass of blue and green to me again.

"I wish you'd keep it," I said suddenly. "As a sort of welcome-to-our-city gift. It's so — just right for you. I WISH you'd keep it."

"Oh—I couldn't," she began indolently. But her amber eyes danced, and she said suddenly, "You dear! I really believe you want me to have it. . . . I'm going to like you. Do you really want me to have this beautiful thing?"

"I want you to have it."

"What fun!" cried Valerie Cosby. "People are always giving me things. I don't know why. Have you heaps of pretty things that you part with this so graciously?"

"It's—just something—I have no use for—no possible use," I replied stubbornly. "And it's so lovely on you."

Then she studied me with sudden keenness like steel under velvet. I thought of the fancy dress dance again. . . . Now she would wear it.

To Be Continued.

Useful Knowledge

"I do not love you!" said a young woman who knew her own mind. "But," persisted the wrong man, "couldn't you learn to love me?" "No," she replied, "I have learned a good many difficult things, but they have always been things that I wanted to learn."

Regular Habits Produce a Beautiful Complexion

Daily elimination rids the system of poisons. Women should realize that!

MANY women complain daily of their complexion, of their headaches and general ill health little realizing that the trouble is constipation. Women, too, are much more subject to such congestion than men, and much more careless of it. The result is seen in lusterless, weary eyes, in sallow, pimply complexion, in lassitude, bad breath, and in that word so often used, "indisposed."

At the first sign of these symptoms the wise woman will take a laxative, and will see that the young girl and others in her care do likewise. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite with thousands of women because it is mild and gentle in its action and in the end trains the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work naturally without the aid of medicine.

This combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1 a bottle, the latter for families, for it is also a very sterling first-aid in colds, fevers and other sudden ills that make it advisable to always have a bottle in the home. It is free from narcotics and safe for the tiniest baby.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c.

Child Almost Dead
Grandmother Saves Life

Roxbury, Mass. A grandmother in Roxbury writes: "I put great faith in your medicine, and one of my children was dying. The doctor said she could not live until morning, and I ran out to the drug store, got a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir, was so excited I gave her the half of the bottle at once, and at night I gave her the other half. I thought it's either kill or cure, for the doctor says she is dying anyway, but she did not die. She went to sleep, the first sleep for a week, and the next morning she passed two worms, red in color, six inches long. The doctor came to see if she was dead, but he ran out pretty quick, for she was sitting in her chair eating a bowl of oatmeal and milk. That was twenty-four years go, and now she has a baby girl of her own, n months old, who is also using Dr. True's ." (Name on request.)

KREISLER'S ART DELIGHTS AT SYMPHONY

Violinist Warmly Received in Fine Program—His First Since War

Symphony Hall was crowded to capacity, with music patrons in the outer aisles at the side and rear walls, at Fritz Kreisler's first violin recital this season. The popular violinist was warmly received and offered a well-arranged and delightfully interpreted program — many numbers his own works. He was accompanied at the piano by Carl Lamson.

Kreisler is a master of the violin—with few living equals, and his latest concert only served to emphasize that to be able to play the music of Kreisler one must first live and suffer. He plays with equal abandon on one's heartstrings and the strings of his instrument.

His concerto, A-minor, and concerto, C-major, by Vivaldi and Viotti, were enthusiastically received. The audience showed its appreciation by a continued demand for an encore.

The entire program received a similar reception, except for his opening number, sonata, G-minor, by Tartini. Somehow this was not accepted in the same spirit as the rest of the recital program.

His interpretation of the "Hymn to the Sun," from "Coq d'Or," transcribed by Kreisler from that of Rimsky-Korsakoff, brought forth a demand for many encores.

Following was the program:

Sonata, G-minor, G. Tartini; Concerto, C-major, A. Vivaldi; Concerto, A-minor, G. B. Viotti; Melodie, Gluck; Ballet Music, from "Rosamunde," Schubert; Hymn to the Sun, from "Coq d'Or," Rimsky-Korsakoff (Transcribed by Kreisler); La Gitana, Kreisler; Tambourin Chinois, Kreisler.

Kreisler will again appear at Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon, January 18, 1920.

WINTER GARDEN PLAYERS PRESENT LIVELY CONCERT

The "Monte Cristo, Jr.," company presented twelve numbers of vaudville at their second Sunday evening concert at the Boston Opera House before an enthusiastic audience.

Esther Walker gave her "Sahara" number. Spencer and Williams, in a running fire of jokes and songs, received a warm reception.

Upon his entrance Ralph Hertz received a big hand. His method of giving "What You Want and What You Get" was extremely entertaining.

Jack Squires and the Butterfly Girls, arrayed in gorgeous costumes, presented their number of the regular show. The impersonation of Charley Chaplin by one of the Three Keltons was humorous. They also played the cornet and trombone and sang several songs.

Al Shayne gave the audience a thrill when he staged a fight with one of the musicians in the orchestra who eventually went on the stage and did several numbers.

Other acts which were well received were Clarke and Verdi, in a dialect dialogue; Ash and Hyams, in songs and jokes, Ethel Gray with songs; Mart Fuller Golden in a monologue; Ramsey, Young and Lewis with songs, and the Quixey Four, a quartet with songs and banjoes.

STATE GUARD SEES "BREAKFAST IN BED"

Eighteen hundred members of the Massachusetts State Guard packed the Plymouth Theatre last night and rocked the playhouse to its foundations with laughter and applause at a complimentary performance of "Breakfast In Bed" as enacted by Florence Moore and her company through the courtesy of A. H. Woods, the producer, and the Messrs. Shubert.

After the first act Private Henry J. Bennett, hero of Chateau Thierry, made a few remarks of appreciation and called for three cheers for star and play which was given with gusto.

Following the second act Miss Moore was presented with a huge bouquet of flowers and "cupie" dolls for herself and the other feminine members of the cast.

LIQUOR MEN FINED AFTER RAID IN NEW BEDFORD

New Bedford, Oct. 20.—As the outcome of a raid made by the police on a saloon at No. 2283 Acushnet avenue, where more than a thousand dollars' worth of liquor was seized, Eugene H. Vien, proprietor of the Waverley Hotel, and Charles Phoenix, who ran the Acushnet avenue place, were found guilty of keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell.

Vien was fined $100 and Phoenix $50.

COL. LYNCH LECTURES ON IRELAND TUESDAY

Colonel Arthur Lynch, a close friend of the late Theodore Roosevelt and other noted Americans, whose wide experience in public affairs for the past twenty years has won him the title of the "Soldier of Liberty," will lecture in Tremont Temple, Tuesday evening on "The Irish Question." Colonel Lynch's efforts for the Irish people have done much to win him his acquired title.

The chronicle of what Colonel Lynch has done and experienced during twenty years of public activities is as an engrossing and vivid tale as that furnished the world by any author.

Colonel Lynch was born in Australia, of Irish parentage, where, after attending the universities and studying journalism, poetry and literature, he became a correspondent for the London newspapers. He gained considerable prominence during the African war as a correspondent.

ROXBURY MAN HELD FOR KEEPING STILLS

Wolf Goldstein of Intervale street, Roxbury, custodian of the building at No. 17 Ottisfield street, was held in $3,000 for a hearing Friday, following a plea of not guilty of maintaining a liquor nuisance, in the Roxbury Court today. He was arrested during a raid by Sergeant Horton and Special Officer Gillis of the Dudley street police station Saturday night, when two complete stills and 150 gallons of liquor in process of manufacture were seized.

Judicial Officers Should Be First to Respect Law

This was an offence against a city ordinance, and the police broke up the parade and arrested participants.

So far, the authorities and the police were within the law and performing their well-defined duties.

The arrested persons were subsequently arraigned before a city magistrate and were held without bail on a charge of TREASON.

Here neither the magistrate nor the city prosecutor was within the law.

Our fathers had many illustrations of the abuse of the charge of treason. So they wrote into the Constitution a clear definition of the crime of treason in these words:

> Treason against the United States shall consist ONLY in levying war against them or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort.

Before one can be guilty of treason in our country, the country must be at war with an enemy, foreign or domestic.

A riot is not a state of war. A declaration by the Congress in case of a foreign enemy or a proclamation by the President in case of domestic rebellion is necessary to the legal creation of a state of war.

These arrested paraders were marching and carrying banners as a protest against the blockade of Russian ports.

The United States is NOT at war with Russia.

There is no warrant in the constitutional powers of the President or in domestic law or in international law for the blockade of Russia ports or the presence of American troops on Russian soil.

The blockade and the invasion of Russia are both illegal, unauthorized by Congress and unwarranted by the Constitution.

We are not here discussing Russian affairs, or what government is good or bad in Russia.

We simply affirm that the United States is not lawfully at war with Russia, or with any part of Russia, and that it is impossible that any aid or comfort given to any government in Russia can be treason.

It is therefore lawful for an American individual to sympathize with the Soviet Government or with the Kolchak Government or the Denikine Government.

The offence of which these paraders were guilty is clear. They broke a city ordinance and came within the lawful jurisdiction of the police power of the city.

But right there the offence stopped. They were no more guilty of treason, actual and constructive, than were two men or any number of men who might engage in a street fight, or than a bartender who sells whiskey on the sly.

We think it is a grave mistake for magistrates and prosecuting attorneys to abuse the Constitution and the laws by denying bail to offenders against a police ordinance on the trumped-up and utterly indefensible charge of the capital crime of treason.

In this way the Constitutional guarantee of bail pending trial upon all charges, except capital criminal charges, is denied to citizens by legal hocus-pocus.

Such actions are in contempt of the letter and the spirit of the supreme law of the land, and if magistrates and prosecutors do not respect and reverence the law and its guarantees, how can they expect the masses to reverence and obey the laws?

It is far worse for public officials, charged upon their oaths to support and defend and maintain the Constitution and the rights of accused persons, to evade those oaths and deny obedience to the mandates of the Constitution than it is for ignorant or hotheaded men to break any police ordinance.

In the latter case there is individual wrongdoing and foolishness, which can easily be punished and discouraged with no great harm to the body politic, but in the other case there is a grave blow struck at the constitutional safeguards which alone preserve the liberties of us all and make the nation, indeed, a nation of free men.

There has been far too much of this contempt of the Constitution and the law shown in late years by the Government itself and by inferior agents and officials—including courts, prosecutors, Federal and State secret agents and the miserable organizations of sneaks and busybodies and perjurers of which so-called "defence societies" are constituted.

We must get back to more respect for the laws of the land and the guaranteed rights of ALL citizens, rich or poor, or we shall surely find that disrespect for the laws and citizens' rights in high places will breed hatred and violence in low places.

Common sense ought to make that clear to public officers and to those who are most interested in restoring the country to peace and contentment.

Americans Viewed in Europe as Soft Marks

In proof that Europe's interest in Americans is selfish, a returned soldier of the A. E. F. sends us this incident, typical of so many:

> On the night of August 3, 1918, while on our way to the Vesle to relieve the Fourth Division, we hiked thirteen miles in the rain down in the Meurthe-et-Moselle section. When we reached our destination, a miserable, shell-holed village once held by the Germans, the farmer at whose place we paused was so enthusiastic with gratitude that he charged us two cents each for a lodging on the floor and refused us a little straw to lie on.

The next day some of these Americans went to their death fighting to defend that farmer's country.

Instead of subscribing to the proposed $50,000,000 fund for foreign sailors, this American veteran suggests that we "let charity begin at home; let us help our own people—the relatives of those who have fallen and those who still in vain besiege the employment agencies."

Which of course is exactly the gospel of this newspaper.

It takes a veteran of the A. E. F. to understand most thor[illegible]hly from personal experience how little there is in it for the [illegible]tates to be mixed up in the quarrels of Europe.

Relations of the Regular Army to the National Guard

By COLONEL WILLIAM F. MARTIN, U. S. A.,

In Charge of Militia Affairs, Northeastern Department

Boston, Mass., October 14, 1919.

ACCORDING to a Boston newspaper of October 10, 1919, there was held the night before at the State Capitol a meeting of the National Guard Association. The article stated that there were present a number of generals and colonels. As is well known, the State of Massachusetts has practically no National Guard, as all such were absorbed into the army of the United States soon after the great war began in 1917 and since then none has been organized in Massachusetts.

It may not be quite clear just what the assembly of gentlemen (some of whom are well known in this State) represented, but they have no doubt in their own minds (if they are correctly reported) as to their purposes, which are stated to be: "* * * defeat of regular army efforts to dictate the military policy of the nation. The evidence to be sought is chiefly such as will show the alleged unfitness of the regular army to advise this policy." Referring to the Chamberlain-Kahn bill, it was stated, "* * * the National Guard would have virtually no recognition * * *. We should do all in our power to show up the incompetency of the regular army to take care of the youth of the country * * ." It was advocated " * * a formal campaign to expose the regular army * * *."

Army Abused

It is a well-known fact that the regular army has been abused and maligned by all sorts and classes of people, sometimes with cause and more often without, generally because they had little else to talk about, but there has always come a time when its services were badly needed. The officers of the regular army are human, and, like others, make mistakes.

It appears to the average man that it would be utterly unjust to condemn all physicians because here and there are found quacks, or all merchants because some are dishonest, or all men because some are crooked. It is not believed that these men represent the National Guard of other States; then what do they represent besides themselves?

The National Defence Act of June 3, 1916, was a most important military law. Congress in its wisdom provided for a National Guard, acting largely upon the advice of National Guard officers as to those sections relating to its organization. With slight changes that is the National Guard law of the present. In this law it is provided that its strength shall eventually reach 800 enlisted men for each senator and representative in Congress, or a total well over 400,000.

The assembly of gentlemen declared emphatically against the universal liability to training as proposed by the Chamberlain-Kahn bill, and by which every young man, on reaching the age of nineteen, will be required to go through a period of six months intensive military work, and by means of which law it is estimated about 660,000 young men would receive training annually.

Universal Training

It is not the purpose here to discuss the value of such training to the young men themselves. If the number stated be turned out yearly, why should not the National Guard take a sufficient number of them to fill up their units with this class of (six-months trained) men? The National Defence Act provides for pay for officers and men of the National Guard, maximum pay for those who attend forty-eight drills per year, and in addition the same pay as regular army for fifteen days' camp per year. This amount of National Guard training alone cannot make soldiers, but if six-months men are taken into the National Guard and given the amount of drill and instruction that produces maximum pay, then the National Guard will be a splendid fighting force ready at very short notice to enter first line fighting.

This is the greatest chance the National Guard has ever had to become a fine, efficient force, and a force that the State and nation could absolutely depend upon at all times. It is believed that if the States would unite it would be easy to secure the needed legislation by Congress, the passage of the Chamberlain-Kahn bill. Additional legislation could be provided by the States themselves for putting the finished six-months men into the National Guard. A two-year enlistment would be desirable, one-half of each company or other unit going out of the National Guard every year and passing into a general reserve. Why cannot the National Guard and its leaders see this opportunity? Why cannot the leaders drop their selfish and ambitious schemes, cease bickering, scolding and playing politics, and strive harmoniously with the regular army to secure with reasonable economy an efficient force?

ROMANCE OF BEAUTY IS SEEN IN GEOLOGY

By Garrett P. Serviss

THIS morning, in sight of the Adirondack peaks, I sat down under a giant elm on a huge gray rock whose mossy decorations have been worn off by many preceding sitters, and where a young woman had lost her glittering powder-box in the tall grass, and as I glanced at the surface of the stone beside me I was electrified by seeing there, where they had been embedded for eons upon eons, the spiral forms of many aristocrats of the primordial animal world — coiled cephalopods, ammonoids, the sight of whose cornute fossils, like the poetic echo of "the horn of Roland," inspires the imagination with the romance of antiquity.

Among them was what appeared to be almost an entire crinoid ("sea-lily"), or perhaps a blastoid, lying on its side in its stony bed, with its curving stem (for such animals lived and died fastened, like plants, forever in one place), and its once beautiful head worn by the weather of these modern ages and polished by the hundreds of humans who had made a chair of this geological tomb without ever guessing what it was.

If a new commentary were needed on the familiar line, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," it could be found here. The involuted fossils that seem chiseled on the rock are so graceful and harmonious, as curve sweeps into widening curve, that a girl who had been dancing until midnight, when I called her attention to the forms, began to murmur while she studied them the undulous metres of a waltz. I chose to believe that what I heard was the beauty of the old ammonoid's perfect curves rippling into music, as if that hoary stone, ridged with fossil shapes, were a "record" of the eternal song of life.

From Dawn of Time

Reader, do you recall the beautiful old poem, "The Nautilus and the Ammonite," which it is to the credit of geological science to have inspired? It tells, "in mournful (but deliciously romantic) numbers," how in the early dawn of time the nautilus and the ammonite, like sister and brother, set out to sail the seas together. For ages they explored all the bays, visited all the coral caves, saw, hand in hand, the flitting sunshine of many a changing eon, until at last, a breath of death blew over the ancient sea, and nautilus was left alone and the ammonite was no more."

Today the ammonoids are gone from the earth as living forms and the nautiloids are moribund. When the former was nearing their end as a race some of them assumed extraordinary forms, probably, as Professor Le Comte suggested, in consequence of their failing efforts to resist the effects of a changing and unfavorable environment.

Agassiz's imagination beheld in these strange forms "the death-contortions of the ammonite family." But the ammonoids who were buried in this piece of petrified sea-bottom that lies, glacier-borne, under the elm where I sit writing, were among the early representatives of the race, at a time when that breath of death that widowed the nautilus was millions of years in the future, and when those beautiful companions sailed the "unshadowed main" with no thought of any parting.

Beauty of Antique World

At every turn of thought the wonder of the exquisite beauty of the antique world, when man was yet a far-off imitation in the Creator's mind, becomes increasingly impressive. The most exquisite curves and combinations of accordant form were conceived in those remote ages before the intellect had a domicile on the planet. All the shades and blendings of color were there.

NO DOG WILL CHOOSE ANOTHER MATE FOR HER

Katherine Pollion trusted the judgment of her pet dog in selecting a husband. She argued that animals are favored with a species of intuition which enables them to form a correct estimate of human character. As a result pretty Katherine's innocent heart was betrayed and almost broken. Read all about it in the Magazine section of next Sunday's

SCRUB OAK LAND MAY CONTAIN A FORTUNE

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

AN old resident of Long Island was bewailing to me not long ago that so much of its territory is unfitted for cultivation.

"There you have one of the most advantageously placed pieces of country imaginable," he said, right at the door of New York City, the greatest market in the world." If every inch of it was in crops you could sell them all without the slightest difficulty. But outside of a strip of fertile soil along the shores there's nothing to most of it. It's just a waste of sand and scrub oak, with occasional pockets or small oases of better land."

"And can nothing be done by fertilization?" I asked.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"It would cost more to fertilize than you could ever hope to get out of it," he said.

Yet a few days afterward I happened to motor by a thrifty-looking farm, which I recalled as having been, perhaps a dozen years ago, about as ragged a stretch of scrub oak as one would care to encounter.

The explanation was not hard to seek. Some one had come along and had noted in that unsightly, unpromising waste two or three of those "pockets" or oases of fertile soil of which my friend had spoken.

He cleared these off of brush and timber and started in to cultivate them extensively. Then year by year he extended his operations, burning off more and more of the scrub oak and widening the circle of his "pockets" until at last the whole was as I saw it.

Many Have Scrub-Oak Ideas

There are a whole lot of people I know whose minds are a good deal like that Long Island country—just wastes of stunted, worthless scrub-oak ideas and barren sand.

There are very few of us, in fact, who are, like a Roosevelt or a Lincoln, all arable land. With most of us, the mental kingdom is merely a few fallow spots or "pockets" and the rest an unkempt and untended wilderness.

Some of us have more "pockets" of intelligence than others, but even the one with only a single spot and that a very small one need not despair. By assiduous and unremitting effort—never letting up—the scrub oak can be rooted out and destroyed, the sand brought under cultivation, and your soul become, as Isaiah says, a watered garden.

I know of a man who had such a "pocket." It did not seem very much of a "pocket," nor one capable even under cultivation of proving profitable. It was merely an observant interest in the habits and ways of small creatures, birds and mice and rabbits and toads and squirrels and chipmunks and beetles.

How One Man Made Good

Indeed, the man regarded his talent or "pocket" so lightly that he never attempted to cultivate it or put it to use in any way, except occasionally to amuse his little boy with stories that he made up about the behavior or antics of some of the animals he was watching.

In the meantime, he was drudging away as so many others do at various jobs which were uncongenial and at which he made little headway. He seemed to have no especial bent in life, and so he merely drifted around in the scrub oak. He was nearing thirty-five, married and with a family, and his salary ran at about twenty-five dollars a week. The future held but little hope. And on top of it all, he lost his position.

Some wise friends who had seen a batch of his animal stories which he had written as letters to his boy while the latter was away on a visit advised him to have them published, and he was finally prevailed upon to do so, but, as he himself confesses, with scarcely a hope of any results.

The little book went with a whirl, however, proving that there was an enormous demand for just that sort of thing; and with the way thus pointed out to him, he set industriously to work to improve and cultivate his field and has made a fortune doing it.

That neglected and disregarded "pocket" of his has turned out to be a literal gold mine.
